B52s hit enemy areas while S. Viets retreat

SAIGON (UPI) — Ten waves of U.S. B52 bombers struck during the night behind South Vietnamese troops that were retreating from five Central Highlands Military outposts captured Monday by North Vietnamese forces. Four Americans were killed in the fighting.

Spokesman said the giant planes dumped at least 900 tons of bombs during the overnight strikes against Communist positions in embattled Kontum Province. The strikes were an attempt to halt the Communist offensive in the Central Highlands which had been predicted for months.

A senior U.S. adviser said the Communists were preparing to seize control of the country's midsection.

Field reports Monday said North Vietnamese forces spearheaded by tanks, captured the five South Vietnamese military outposts in the Central Highlands. The B52 strikes were made behind the troops retreating from the string of major bases in the province 280 miles north of Saigon.

In the air war Monday, U.S. B52 bombers struck targets deep inside North Vietnam, hitting the port of Thanh Hoa, 82 miles south of Hanoi, and a nearby road complex. They also struck within one-half mile of the besieged provincial capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon.

One of the eight-engined B52 Stratofortresses raiding Thanh Hoa limped back to Da Nang airfield Monday after it was hit by sharpnel from an exploding surface-to-air (SAM) missile. It was the first time in the war one of the high-flying heavy bombers had been hit over North Vietnam. There were no casualties.

On April 9, a B52 flying a mission against Communist positions in South Vietnam was struck and damaged by a SAM fired from a base in North Vietnam.

Early today Communist gunners far behind the front lines of the battered South Vietnamese soldiers fired four rockets into the airfield at Pleiku, the Central Highlands' major city. There were no reports of casualties, spokesmen said.

The North Vietnamese also hit Da Nang air base for the second time in a day late Monday and struck the rear headquarters of the 22nd infantry division on the central coast. Two persons were wounded at Da Nang and "light casualties" were reported at the headquarters, the Saigon high command said.

The command also reported two battles in northernmost Quang Tri province. Soth Vietnamese marines and Rangers were reported to have killed 127 communists in the clashes. Four government soldiers were reported killed and 47 wounded.

The U.S. command said Monday another 8,500 American servicemen were pulled out of Vietnam last week, reducing U.S. ground forces in the war zone to 76,500. But another 4,000 men were added to the vast 7th Fleet armada operating off the Vietnamese coast, bringing to 38,000 the number of sailors involved in the current war effort.

Terrorist grenades injure 200

MANILA — Terrorists hurled hand grenades into a crowded rural fiesta dance early today killing at least 16 persons and wounding more than 200, Red Cross officials said. Philippine constabulary National police authorities initially reported five persons were killed and 82 wounded in the bombing at Cabugao, Ilocos Sur, 200 miles north of Manila. But Red Cross officials in Manila later reported the toll had risen to at least 16 dead and more than 200 injured in the turbulent Ilocos Sur province. The terrorists escaped.

Brandt faces challenge

BONN — Germany's Brandt faces a challenge from the opposition Christian Democrats. They said they would try to topple the Bonn Chancellor's government by calling for a parliamentary vote of no confidence on his economic policies. A defeat for Brandt would mandate the election of a new chancellor, and observers said that, with Sunday's defection by a free democratic ally, Brandt had the bare minimum of 249 votes he needed to stay in power. The loss of only one of those votes, through further defections or illness, could bring down his government, they said.

GOP may move to Miami

WASHINGTON — Moving the GOP convention to Miami Beach from San Diego will be discussed at a meeting of the Republican National Committee May 5 and 6 in Washington. R.L. Herman, vice chairman of the party's committee on arrangements, said problems of keeping the convention in San Diego were "almost insurmountable." He added, "I am actively seeking a bid from Miami Beach." (Details on page 2.)

Jury convicts

NEW YORK — Harlem Assemblyman Hulan Jack, once the nation's highest black elected official, and four codefendants were found guilty Monday of conspiring to force food markets to carry products promoted by Jack's public relations firm. Jack, who as Manhattan borough president was the top black officeholder, also was convicted of nine additional counts including aiding and abetting the conspiracy and conflict of interest. The seven-man, five-woman federal jury returned its verdict after three days of deliberations.

Fraudulent tax returns

NORWICH — Commissioner Johnnie M. Walters of the International Revenue Service said Monday that a nationwide check of 3,200 income tax preparers disclosed that about 6 out of 10 of them appeared to have prepared fraudulent returns for taxpayers. Walters said that of the 1,800 who had appeared to prepare fraudulent returns, the IRS had 250 cases in various stages of prosecution. "We have made 61 arrests. We have indicted 51, and 13 preparers have pleaded guilty or have been convicted," Walters said in remarks prepared for the mid-year meeting of the Connecticut Bar Assn. The IRS has began a campaign against unscrupulous tax return preparers who cheat not only the government but the taxpayers whose returns they prepare. Congress also is looking into the problem.

Hubert Humphrey tours western Pennsylvania

Top Democrats tour state in final bid for support

By United Press International

On the eve of two important primaries, Sen. George S. McGovern predicted Monday he would carry Massachusetts and might "very well" win Pennsylvania, too.

McGovern, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie all spent the final full day of campaigning in the Keystone State. McGovern is the acknowledged frontrunner in Massachussets, while Humphrey is favored in Pennsylvania.

"We will sweep the state of Massachusetts and in Pennsylvania we have one of the finest volunteer organizations and it may very well be they'll carry the state," McGovern said at a news conference in West Chester.

Humphrey, who has the support of many of Pennsylvania's union leaders, made an early morning visit to a Pittsburgh steel mill and then took a helicopter tour of steel and mining communities in western Pennsylvania.

Muskie who has the support of Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, had a coffee and sweet roll "rap session" in Phailadelphia, visited an addict rehabilitation center here, and then flew to Western Pennsylvania.

UPI reporter Steve Gerstel said Humphrey viewed the Pennsylvania primary as a "benchmark" campaign.

"Anything less than a win in the preference primary in Pennsylvania would keep him saddled with the reputation of not being able to win," Gerstel said. "A victory, however, would establish him as the dominant candidate from the Democratic Party's center."

Pennsylvania voters will select 137 of 182 Democratic delegates to the national convention with the remainder to be named later. Massachusetts voters pick 102 Democratic delegates, with 20 per cent chosen statewide and the others from the 12 congressional districts.

In other developments:

—Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination and the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, told a news conference in Boston that he was confident he could push through Congress a bill to equalize federal income tax rates for single and married persons.

Appearing with Mills was Miss Vivian Kellems, a Connecticut industrialist who has refused to pay income taxes on grounds the government owes her $90,000 because of discriminatory rates against single persons.

—Gov. George C. Wallace at a rally in Boston asked for a good vote in Massachusetts to give "false liberals" the "shakes." He said "any percentage I get here will be fine."

Apollo blasts from moon ending historic exploration

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Three tired, and sometimes testy astronauts blasted away from the moon Monday night, ending what scientists believe may be America's most rewarding lunar exploration.

But Apollo 16 commander John W. Young reported as he and his space-rookie companions headed toward Earth and looked back at the still mysterious terrain: "We really haven't even begun to scratch the surface of the complexity of this story."

Young, his fellow moonwalker, Charles M. Duke Jr., and Thomas K. "Ken" Mattingly hurled the command ship Casper on its 248,000-mile return trip to Earth at 9:15 p.m. EST.

They fired their big rocket engine for two minutes and 42 seconds and then marveled at the craft's acceleration.

"Just saw you coming up like thunder and that's how we're coming up," Young radioed as the crew got a glimpse of the earth and the command ship accelerated to 5,900 miles an hour.

The firing —causing more concern than usual because of previous guidance and control unit problems —occurred behind the moon. Ground controllers confirmed 10 minutes later, after re-establishing contact with the astronauts, that they were on their way toward splashdown in the Pacific on Thursday afternoon.

"The general agreement in the cockpit here is that morale went up a couple of hundred per cent," Young radioed.

Before leaving lunar orbit, the astronauts cast off the lander Orion with a fond farewell. But they failed to set its controls correctly and lost a chance to crash it into the moon.

Confused and irritated by lengthy flightplan changes radioed up from Houston, the astronauts acknowledged that they had left Orion's controls set on "attitude hold" rather than autopilot from which it could be remote controlled.

It was the second scientific experiment lost on the $445 million mission because of human error. Young tripped over and broke a tiny wire during his first moonwalk with Duke on Friday, ruining a heat flow experiment that scientists had given top priority.

35 per cent turnout expected

By United Press International

Faced with rainy weather and hundreds of candidates making last-minute campaign appeals, only about 35 per cent of the state's 5.4 million voters were expected to cast ballots in Tuesday's primary.

Voters were asked to go to the polls early because of anticipated poor weather, and because of an expected voter jam later in the day caused by a confusing ballot.

For the first time, citizens could choose a presidential candidate and delegates who will support him at presidential nominating conventions. In addition, candidates for auditor general, treasurer, 228 General Assembly seats, 25 congressional seats and hundreds of local offices were on the ballots.

Excessive profits to help consumer

NEW YORK (UPI) Price Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr. said Monday the commission has ordered some of the largest companies to make refunds and reductions totaling "hundreds of millions of dollars" on prices which exceeded profit margin ceilings.

"These reductions will result in actual refunds to known customers, or through reduced prices in the market place when customers aren't identifiable," Grayson said.

Grayson spoke at the annual Associated Press luncheon on the opening day of the 86th convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Grayson said that late last week the commission had begun "a series of major actions which will result in hundreds of millions of dollars of price reductions, which will roll back current prices of some of the country's largest companies to their base period levels.

Grayson said the action was being taken on the basis of first quarter and annual reports of companies showing they have exceeded the profit margin ceilings imposed by the commission.

"In some companies the reductions will be tens of thousands of dollars," he said. "In others, the reductions will be several millions of dollars. Some companies will be doing this voluntarily as they see themselves approaching our ceiling.

"Others, who have already breached the ceiling, will be issued price reduction orders by the Price Commission."

Grayson said most of the companies that have violated the profit margin requirements have done so innocently, and about half have acceptable reasons such as seasonal fluctuations.

"The other half have been asked to justify their overages, and those that can't are subject to price reductions, refunds and penalties," he said.

Grayson said polls indicated nearly two out of three Americans doubted the Price Commission could stop inflation.

"We're administering shock therapy -shocking business, labor, consumers into an awareness of what we're doing and what we've all gotten ourselves into," he said.

Pentagon continues own probe

Congressman details USO scandal

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Citing two unnamed former USO employes as his source, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., Monday released information alleging that "a gang of USO thieves" may have cheated American soldiers in Vietnam. He said one USO director there banked $2 million.

In a statement in the Congressional Record, Aspin also said he is investigating possible attempts by the United Service Organizations' (USO) top leadership to cover up the alleged practices.

Aspin said that if the allegations to his staff by two women who formerly worked for USO are true, "then the evidence is rapidly mounting that a gang of USO thieves cheated American GIs in Vietnam."

One of the informants said she saw the personal bank statements of the former director of the USO facility at Ton Son Nhut military base in South Vietnam and that he had "tens of thousands of dollars in it."

The informants said the man —now a businessman in Southeast Asia —earned only about $8,500 annually, but he had numerous bank accounts and that he ran a mail order business that never mailed purchased merchandise.

"We (USO staff) often discussed his many bank accounts in banks all over the world," said one of the informants, "and I was told by my boss that he was sure he made over $2 million; we were all sure of it."

At USO headquarters in New York City, Peter Van Haverbeke, director of public relations, said, "There is nothing we can comment on until our own investigation is completed."

He said that the USO was cooperating with the Defense Department in its investigation and that the USO president, Maj. Gen. Francis L. Sampson (Ret.), traveled to Vietnam a month ago with other USO officials as part of its independent probe of the allegations.

The Pentagon announced on April 14 that a special investigative team had been sent to Vietnam to investigate what Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said was apparent fraud involving "very substantial" sums of money.

Aspin last week released statements by USO personnel detailing black market operations and the stealing of gift packages destined for GIs — including $10,000 worth of cigarettes that were sold on the black market.

GOP may shift convention from San Diego to Miami

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Indicating an almost certain switch, Republican National Chairman Bob Dole Monday summoned the GOP National Committee to a meeting next week to consider his recommendation that the party move its national convention from San Diego to Miami Beach.

UPI learned that both Dole, a GOP senator from Kansas, and R. L. "Dick" Herman, vice chairman of the committee for convention arrangements, will urge the committee to approve the switch to Florida.

In issuing the call for the meeting here May 5-6, Dole said the problems of keeping the convention in San Diego were "almost insurmountable."

In a statement in Miami Beach, Herman said he is "actively seeking a bid from Miami Beach" for the convention and that he hoped the beach city council "will see fit to invite us."

Miami Beach also will host the Democratic convention starting July 10, but deferred making a last-minute money offer last Friday to the Republicans to take their convention there because of a conflict in dates.

The GOP convention is now scheduled Aug. 21 in San Diego, but problems in the California city ignited the move to change the convention site. The major difficulties in San Diego were delays in starting construction work at the city's sports arena, failure of the city to come up with all of its pledge in cash and services, and a shortage of promised hotel rooms.

There also was speculation that a motive behind the shift was to remove the convention from San Diego because of the Senate Judiciary Committee's investigation on an alleged commitment by the International Telephone & Telegraph to underwrite part of the expenses there. ITT was involved in an antitrust suit at the time.

The Miami Beach conflict involves use of the Convention Hall, already hired out to General Motors Aug. 20 to 30 for the showing of the 1973 Buicks. Herman has said that because of legal considerations, the GOP cannot hold its convention a week earlier, as beach officials had suggested.

Dole, in the telegram released by Herman, told the 158 members of the Republican National Committee, "I am sure you can understand the urgency of this call."

In a memorandum being mailed to committee members, Dole said, "I am sure you are aware through the news media that we are faced with problems in San Diego that are almost insurmountable. This had led us to consider the possibility of moving the convention to another site."

Viet Cong appeal for talks

PARIS (UPI)—The Viet Cong appealed directly to U.S. senators and representatives Monday, asking them to force President Nixon to halt the Vietnam War and to resume negotiations in Paris.

The appeal, in the form of a letter to senators and House members, was dated April 20 and signed by Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, the Viet Cong's foreign minister and chief negotiator at the Paris talks.

Mrs. Binh appealed directly to the legislators to take action against White House policies on Vietnam.

Mrs. Binh spelled out once more the Viet Cong's July 1, 1971, seven-point peace plan which the United States and South Vietnam have called unacceptable.

In Washington, The White House replied sharply to Madame Binh's letter urging members of Congress to help stop the bombing of North Vietnam. "This presumptious effort to inject herself into the American political process is folly on her part," said Assistant Presidential Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren.

Many demonstrators arrested

Antiwar protests seen subsiding

By United Press International

A new round of demonstrations against the war in Vietnam drifted into its second week Monday, but the protests appeared to be subsiding and lacked the intensity of the 1970 upheaval on the nation's campuses.

About three dozen protesters were arrested at Chicopee, Mass., when they tried to block the main gate at Westover Air Force Base. Ten Colby College students were arrested and suspended from school at Waterville, Maine, when police ended a sit-in at the campus ROTC building.

Columbia University students kept picket lines up at most buildings on the New York City campus. The school, which suspended classes Friday, reopened Monday. Some students and professors climbed through windows to reach classes.

Seven sailors, protesting conditions aboard ship, leaped overboard from the naval ammunition ship Nitro at Leonardo, N.J., and tried to swim to a flotilla of 16 canoes launched by antiwar protesters.

The Coast Guard said all seven were picked up by its cutters and would be returned to the ship, which left a pier Monday reportedly bound for Vietnam.

In Salt Lake City, Utah, thousands of persons marched eight abreast in a four-block-long procession through the downtown section. They massed at the Federal Building plaza waving signs reading "Stop the bombing...stop the war" and "Thou shalt not kill." Men in business suits and women with babies in strollers joined college students in the demonstration.

"I'm not the type to do something like this," Dolly Moore of Salt Lake City said. "But now everyone is against that war and I just joined the parade.

Leaders of the Student Mobilization Committee and the National Peace Action Coalition said in New York the protests would continue until American involvement in Vietnam ends.

"If we put millions of people in the streets, we'll end the war without Congress or whoever's president," Jerry Gordon, national coordinator of the "Mobe" group, said.

Michael White, who took over Monday as the first black undergraduate president of the Ohio State University student body, said if President Nixon escalates the war further or keeps U.S. military activity at its present level, demonstrations might increase.

Steve Holbrook, one of the leaders of the Salt Lake City protest, said demonstrations are far less violent this year than in May, 1970, because more middle Americans are involved.

Timothy Higgins, president of the University of Wisconsin student association, said: "Only fools and police provocateurs want the students to trash (resort to violence and vandalism)."

Some 300 persons picketed the stockholders' meeting of McDonnell Douglas Corp., manufacturer of Phantom jet fighters, in St. Louis, Mo. They carried signs reading "1, 2, 3, 4; we don't want your corporate war."

Small bands of demonstrators picketed Stanford University service trucks and tried unsuccessfully to force their way into the university president's office at Stanford, Calif.

Nixon's Moscow trip in no danger

MOSCOW (UPI)—High-ranking Soviet officials said Monday the Kremlin has not downgraded President Nixon's forthcoming visit to Moscow in any manner and dismissed a news report to that effect as "pure fabrication."

The sources expressed astonishment at a weekend report of an American news agency (not UPI) alleging Soviet propaganda agencies have been instructed no longer to refer to the event as a "state visit," but to describe it as a "summit conference."

Nixon is due to arrive in Moscow May 22.

The officials called attention to a Soviet government communique of March 17 announcing Nixon "would make an official visit to Moscow" and said "that communique remains in force."

Aide discloses meeting on ITT

WASHINGTON (UPI)—White House aide Peter Flanigan disclosed Monday that he interceded with the Justice Department in the major antitrust case last year, passing on a complaint from the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp.

In a letter to the Senate Judiciary Committee, Flanigan said Felix Rohatyn, an ITT director, raised the antitrust issue in a meeting in Flanigan's office last June 29 and "I replied that this was a matter for ITT and the antitrust division."

A few days later, Flanigan said he met with Richard G. Kleindienst, then deputy attorney general, and "passed on to him the Rohatyn comment and my reply."

The previously undisclosed meeting between Flanigan and Rohatyn came one month before the Justice Department made an out-of-court settlement with ITT that sanctioned the firm's merger with the Hartford Fire Insurance Co.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., demanded Monday that the ITT hearings, adjourned last week, be reopened and that both Flanigan and Kleindienst —whose nomination to be attorney general is pending before the Senate—be recalled.

Kleindienst had testified that he could not recall having any contacts with White House officials about the ITT antitrust case.

"The conflicting statements of Mr. Flanigan and Mr. Kleindienst about the White House involvement in the settlement of the ITT case requires that both of them return to testify fully before the Judiciary Committee before the committee makes a recommendation to the Senate on this matter," Kennedy said in a statement.

The Judiciary Committee ended a six-week inquiry into the ITT antitrust settlement last Friday. The investigation, which has held up Kleindienst's confirmation, was spurred by charges that the settlement was connected with a $200,000 pledge by ITT to underwrite San Diego's costs of hosting the Republican National Convention.

Miranda review dropped

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In an abrupt about-face, the Supreme Court Monday dropped its plan to review the hotly disputed 1966 Miranda decision on criminal confessions.

The Court announced on March 20 it would hear arguments in a Philadelphia case challenging the Miranda doctrine which bars trial use of confessions by a suspect if he had not been advised of his right to remain silent before giving it.

But with only a brief, unsigned comment, the court vacated that action Monday and refused to hear the appeal by Philadelphia District Attorney Arlen Specter from a state supreme court ruling in favor of Paul D. Ware, who had confessed to four robbery-murders.

The only explanation offered for the reversal was that the justices found that the state court ruling against use of his confession "rests upon an adequate state ground."

The landmark Miranda ruling was one of the most heavily criticized decisions of the court under Chief Justice Earl Warren. And when the March 20 action was announced, there was strong speculation that the court, now headed by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, might modify or even overturn the controversial decision.

Justices William J. Brennan Jr., and William O. Douglas were the only remaining members who voted with the 5-4 majority in the original Miranda opinion which had been attacked by police and others hampering the administration of justice.

No vote was given on the court's change of mind. At the time the original acceptance of Specter's appeal was announced, the court asked him to respond in detail to Ware's claim that the state court ruling rested on adequate state grounds and no federal court intervention was needed.

How to analyze primary election

United Press International

Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, which hold the fifth and sixth primaries of the 1972 election year today, may provide some clues to the primaries ahead and to the Democratic National Convention.

In brief, this is what to look for as the returns come in from the two, big eastern states.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey — he has ignored and written off Massachusetts where he did not campaign, so anything he gets there in terms of a percentage in the preference primary is a bonus.

But Humphrey has campaigned hard in Pennsylvania which he calls a "benchmark" primary in his quest for the nomination.

Anything less than a win in the preference primary in Pennsylvania would keep him saddled with the reputation of not being able to win. A victory, however, would establish him as the dominant candidate from the Democratic Party's center.

In the separate contest for 137 Pennsylvania delegates to the convention, Humphrey is looking for a plurality — not a majority. If he gets it — and wins the preference test — it will be a big doubleheader for the 61-year-old Minnesota Senator.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie — during the Wisconsin primary, Muskie was aiming at Massachussetts, Pennsylvania, and Ohio.

If he gets beaten in Massachussetts and Pennsylvania, his stock will slip even lower, making it even more difficult to recoup in Ohio a week later.

A surprise win in either state would give Muskie a badly needed lift. Victory in both states — an event not imagined by even Muskie's optimistic aides — would re-establish him the front-runner for the nomination.

Muskie has geared his campaign to winning delegates — a possible 137 in Pennsylvania, 102 in Massachussetts — and he wants his campaign to be judged on that basis, not the "beauty contest" preference primaries.

Sen. George S. McGovern — he has concentrated almost everything on Massachussetts.

A win there would be his second straight primary victory and keep him rolling. A loss, however, would revive very swiftly questions about the depth of his candidacy.

But in Pennsylvania — where McGovern campaigned only *sporadically — a good percen*tage in the preference primary, a sizable bloc of candidates, or both, would be an easily earned plus.

Ross residents content with 'their' park

By MAUREEN RUFE
Pocono Record Reporter

SAYLORSBURG — Fresh, bubbling perked coffee oozed out the spout of a tired-worn pot—the aroma hypnotized a dozen or so workers who had come to clean the Saylorsburg playground at seven in the morning.

As the volunteers waited for their breakfast, much of the conversation revolved around the expansion of the playground due to the efforts of residents from Hamilton and Ross Townships.

There was a bit of hostility, however, about recent criticism waged at Ross Township for not participating in the proposed takeover of the county's West End park facility.

The Monroe County Park Commission has asked Chestnut Hill, Eldred, Polk, and Ross Townships to take over the $100,000 facility. The cost per township for those participating in the venture would probably be about $500 per year.

The Ross Township supervisors have refused to participate in any of the meetings, because they feel that if they allocate any money for parks, it should go to their own facility in Saylorsburg.

"The West End park is too far away for us to use it," said John Kern, a member of the board of directors of the playground association. "We have better playground facilities here. The only thing we don't have is a pool and most people use Saylor's Lake. Few people from our township use the park in the West End."

Started 10 years ago, the Saylorsburg playground Association meets monthly, and consists only of residents from Ross and Hamilton Townships.

The playground consists of 17 acres and is located old Rt. 115 across from the Flyte School in Saylorsburg.

About seven acres of the land has been developed and the facility now contains two sets of swings and ten other pieces of equipment, including two sliding boards and a small push-type merry-go-round.

The park also contains a covered band stand, a kitchen, a closed pavilion which seats 200 people, restrooms, and a regulation hard ball baseball field.

A little league field is under construction and is due to be completed before the teams' first game in May.

Originally 10 acres of the existing playground belonged to the local baseball club, the Saylorsburg Lakers, a member of the Pocono Mountain League.

The association was originally formed to help the ball club. The two groups have worked together since that time to expand the playground into a community park.

Last year, for example, the two organizations made equal contributions so a metal retaining fence could be constructed around the ball field.

All of the money to develop the park has come from fund raising projects sponsored by the association. The facility is not supported by any government funds.

"Our members pay $1 a year," said President Larry Boyd. "Right now we have 57 members, 24 of whom are active. We hope to solicit more support in the future from residents of the two townships.

Boyd said other fund raising projects included a week-long carnival in July, a few shooting matches, and four or five dinners a year, put on for various groups by women volunteers.

"I want to emphasize we are not sponsored by anybody! That's why we don't want to go into the West End park," said Mrs. Oscar Bonser. We don't want anybody telling us what to do."

"If our townships need help, we can help them ourselves," she continued.

Future plans of the association include the construction of a basketball court at the facility next year. When asked about a pool, all of the members at the playground agreed it would take a great deal of consideration regarding size, cost, maintenance, etc.

They indicated, however, that in the next six or seven years, they hope to make the Saylorsburg playground into a complete municipal park for both townships.

Suddenly the group stopped chattering, the breakfast sounds were momentarily interrupted by grumbling truck engines and grinding bulldozers.

The last men of the work crew were arriving with equipment volunteered to complete the little league field.

The four men came into the kitchen, breakfast was put on the table and the perking and the staccato song of the morning came to an abrupt halt.

Spring Clean-up

Looking down pensively at a batch of dead leaves, Ross Township Supervisor Oscar Bonser takes a firm grip on his rake. Bonser was one of 15 members of the Saylorsburg Playground Association who volunteered to clean up the park for the summer.

Modular community to open

HONESDALE — The opening of a new 630-unit modular and mobile home community on Lake Wallenpaupack in the Pocono Mountains has been announced by Southerton Corporation.

The community, named "The Escape," will include 140 modular homes and 490 mobile homes. All units will be completely furnished, "turnkey" dwellings — ready for occupancy.

The Escape is located on a 236-acre tract bordering Lake Wallenpaupack in Palmyra and Green Townships near here. Modular homes will lean toward the "rustic," in conformity with the lush mountain terrain. Approximately 25 per cent of the tract has been set aside as "open space."

Gerald J. Southerton, president, said that a sales office will be open at the site after May 1. The sale of modular homes will commence at that time. A date hasn't been scheduled yet for the commencement of mobile home sales. Several models of both mobile and modular units are expected to be on display in early June.

Units in the modular section, which borders the lake, will range from $29,900 to $39,900, including the cost of one-half-acre lots. Mobile homes will range from $6,000 to $9,000 and located on one-quarter-acre sites available on a rental basis only.

"We sincerely feel that the customer who is interested in a reasonably priced second home for vacations or weekend trips the year round will find our Escape uniquely packaged to his needs," Southerton said.

"Every aspect of the community and the dwellings within it have been oriented toward the maximum benefit and enjoyment of the surrounding environment.

"Aside from the aesthetic pleasure of living within view of the lake — Pennsylvania's largest-outdoors enthusiasts will have superb access to its facilities.

"For boating enthusiasts and anglers, we're planning a marina with complete dockage facilities, and for the whole family, there will be 800-ft. community beach. Other recreational facilities will include a community swimming pool and community recreation center."

Residents will have access to central sewer and water facilities. All utilities, including electrical and telephone lines, will be underground. Roads are to be fully paved and lighted.

The Escape is located off Route 507, one-mile north of Interstate 84. Driving time is approximately 2 hours from Metropolitan New York, and Philadelphia.

'Ideal wife'

By MAUREEN RUFE
Pocono Record Reporter

GILBERT — It was late last week when I entered a new Gilbert restaurant to try the food. After ordering dinner, cocktails were served on one of those funny little paper napkins that are known to contain worn out jokes and useless trivia.

This particular cocktail napkin however, contained some humorous, all too true comments on "The Ideal Wife." The points were so entertaining, they bear repeating.

The first part of the napkin covered extensively what every man expects from the ideal wife:

. . .always beautiful and cheerful . . could have married movie stars, but only wanted you

. . .hair that never needs curlers or beauty shops

. . .beauty that won't run in a rainstorm

. . .never sick, just allergic to jewelry and fur coats

. . .insists that moving furniture by herself is good for her figure

. . .expert in cooking, cleaning house, fixing the car or T.V., mixing drinks, painting the house, and keeping quiet.

. . .favorite hobbies . . mowing the lawn and shoveling the snow

. . .hates charge plates

. . .her favorite expression: "What can I do for you Dear?"

. . .thinks you have Einstein's brain but look like Mr. America

. . .wishes you could go play poker with the boys so she could get some sewing done

. . .loves you because you're so,o,o sexy

On the reverse side of the napkin, are listed the things that he gets:

. . .she speaks 140 words a minute with gusts up to 180

. . .she once was a model for a totem pole

. . .A light eater — as soon is it gets light, she starts eating

. . .where there's smoke, she starts cooking

. . .she lets you know you have only two faults — everything you say and do

. . .no matter what she does her hair looks like an explosion in a steel wool factory

. . .the last time she used a broom, was to fly somewhere

. . .if you get lost, open your wallet — she'll find you.

. . .she fights with the neighbors just to keep in practice until you come home.

The points on the napkin are indeed humorous, and many of them are probably true. But what I want to know is where is the napkin on the ideal husband?

Retirement.

The end of work, or the beginning of worry?

Most people look toward retirement as a time of relaxation and enjoyment. And it can be if you prepare for it. But if you don't, it can be a time of worry and discontentment. A time when you can look back and think of a million ways that you could have saved, but didn't.

Well, there's no better time to think about retirement than now, while you're working.

One easy way to save on a regular basis is by purchasing U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

Now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970 . . . with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Buy U.S. Savings Bonds.

They'll help make your retirement just what you want it to be.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America.
Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

So what else is new?

Gov. Shapp's plan to tax people according to how much education they have, as well as how much money they're making, got short shrift here in Monroe County. One student, envisioning what he would have to pay under such a plan, summed it up neatly: "Shapp's nuts. He's finally flipped."

Critics of the proposal pointed out it would be inequitable to "penalize" a person for bettering himself by furthering his education. The only fair way to tax the people, said one, was a graduated income tax.

We'll go along with that. But we wonder where these critics have been hiding for the last few years. Because we have such a tax in our midst that has been imposed for years — the occupation tax.

Admittedly, the occupation tax isn't based on the amount of education a person has — not completely, anyway. But the jobs available in any one locale have been graded according to how much such a job returns in compensation, and a value placed on each.

Along comes tax time, and each individual is assessed according to how much the government — in this case, the counties — feels such a job is worth to the jobholder. And the way the occupation tax operates is proof enough that the similar assessment envisioned by Mr. Shapp would indeed be inequitable.

It would seem logical to tax someone on the basis of how much he has earned. But we continue to follow the illogical path of taxing someone on the basis of how much he is capable of earning.

And this is the weakness of the governor's plan and our present occupation tax: You are going to pay a stated amount, irregardless of whether or not you actually have worked a full year at your job and earned what that job is worth.

Mixed up

Someone, somewhere is mixed up.

For one thing he is confused about exactly who is running the show in Pennsylvania.

The person in question is the spokesman for the union which represents Pennsylvania public employes and apparently thinks they are running the state, not the general citizenry.

Gov. Milton Shapp recently received a report from a government management review board which suggested the reduction in size of the number of employes in many state agencies.

Said the union official in commenting on the idea, the union "will not allow mass terminations made in the name of economy or under any other label."

Now, exactly where does he get the idea that the union has to allow the state to fire surplus employes?

Because the employes being discussed are in that class. Anyone who knows anything about state operations knows that many of them are grossly overstaffed as a result of the state's long-existing patronage system.

The union leader said that firing anyone would be an "obvious elimination of services" and that is enough to make you laugh by itself.

In any case, as we recall the discussions concerning the proposal to cut back on state employment, the idea was to do it through attrition, not filling jobs as persons retired, quit or died.

The union won't "allow" that because it would mean it would be losing a dues paying member everytime a job was lost and in case you're interested, that union's economy is a lot more important than the economy of Pennsylvania. Just ask its spokesman if you don't believe us.

WASHINGTON — Do young Americans think what we think they think?

What would you guess most of them from 16 to 29 feel about Russia, communism, business, the FBI, labor, defense, the Pentagon, the police, compulsory national service, General Motors, Ralph Nader and Billy Graham?

Now you can compare what you believe youth think with what youth reports itself as thinking.

Gallup has recently completed a nationwide in-depth study of the minds of college and noncollege young men and women and it yields startling, foreboding and inconsistent findings.

Communism, Russia, the United States

To the extreme left — 14 per cent of young Americans consider themselves "extreme militants" — communism is highly popular, but Russia as a government is highly unpopular and there is no more love for China than Russia.

A significant majority are eager to cut deeply into defense spending but an equal number think it is "very important" that the United States should keep its military power "as strong as Russia's."

Although communism as a theory gets high marks from the extreme left, two-thirds of youth still sees "America as a land of opportunity" and young blacks and whites in about equal numbers believe "anyone can get ahead if he wants to."

The study reveals a "high regard" among young people as a whole for the forces of law and order. The FBI gets a "highly favorable" rating by 56 per cent and the police by 47 per cent. Seventy per cent of noncollege youth gives the FBI a "highly favorable" rating. Negroes give both high ratings.

Gallup cites this pattern of views: "The young person who hates the police is almost certain to hate everything that has to do with military defense, government and organized religion."

People, business and labor

The most popular politician with youth is Sen. Edward Kennedy (37 per cent). President Nixon next (30 per cent).

The most popular of all with youth is the Rev. Billy Graham (44 per cent).

The most unpopular figure is Fidel Castro.

Neither business nor labor commands very high respect from young voters, but business stands a little higher than labor. Labor unions are no longer the darlings of young people of markedly liberal views.

Majority for national service

Seven out of 10 of all young people favor a law requiring that all young men devote a year of service to the nation and 40 per cent would volunteer for the armed services. This, despite the fact that youth is dominantly antimilitary and antiwar.

About one-fourth of all young men interviewed had served military duty and three out of every four said it was "good for me."

This survey justified one forecast. It is that the political trend to the left in the United States, which has been taking place for several decades, will continue for some years to come.

The basis for this prediction is that in each of the three age groups studied — 16 through 19, 20 through 24 and 25 through 29 — young voters are more inclined toward the Democratic Party, social change and experimentation than their parents.

This moves all politicians to the left and the political left of yesterday becomes the political center of today.

What good are guardrails?

Cars and trucks continue to go over them or spin crazily down the highway after running into them, so what good are they?

I found out April 16 while traveling back from Washington, D.C., along Interstate Route 83.

It had been raining cats and dogs all day but traffic was still pretty heavy, as the weekend travelers, like myself, made their way home after getting away from it all for a few days.

I was just outside Baltimore, traveling northbound at a respectable 60 miles per hour — the posted limit was 70 — when I drifted in to the left lane to pass a truck.

We were both cresting a slight hill and as I started to pass the spray thrown up from the road by the trailer's huge rear tandem wheel completely wiped out my visibility.

Deciding to choose a more opportune time to pass the rig, I let off the gas to drop back behind and that's when it happened.

I hydroplaned.

The steering went limp and the car began a sickening lurch to the right. I ran through my mental checklist for skid procedures and drove into the direction I was heading. Surprisingly, the car responded but it came back around much faster than it normally does when skidding on snow.

I was heading straight for the guardrail that separates the two opposite directions of travel and resigned myself to the fact I was going to hit it.

Just before the impact I glanced at the speedometer and I was still doing 60. Once the *hydroplaning action starts, there is no true con*tact with the road once a thin but lethal film of water is between the two and I had not slowed one bit since completely releasing the accelerator seconds before.

A jolt that momentarily knocked me senseless shook the car and I felt the heavy steel girder slam into the door. Suddenly I realized it was all over as the car ricocheted back across the northbound lanes. It was still skidding slightly but it was under control again.

Stopped on the shoulder of the road, I got out to survey the damage. About $300 I figure.

The left front fender took the brunt of the impact and was beyond hope of repair but the doors on the left side carried only a heavy crease that ran all the way back to the tail light.

It was not until a few hours later, while pensively lunched over a cup of Hojo's coffee, that I considered what would have happened if the guardrail had not been there. I shuddered, drained my coffee cup and left.

I got to work late that day and was greeted with the news of a triple fatal accident on I-80 in Stroudsburg that occurred only a few hours prior to my battle scarred arrival.

Maybe if there were a guardrail there it might have been averted. The accident that claimed the lives of five college students in March might have been a different and happier story too.

A 30 foot wide grass strip serves little purpose to slow or stop a car traveling at expressway speeds.

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

Word-Builders

The Latin word "scribere," meaning to write, is the basis for a number of English words. The noun "scribe," which denotes one who writes, is derived from it. The addition of prefixes resulted in other words.

Some of the prefixes are: in (in or into); sub (under, beneath or below); and pre (before).

Adding the prefixes resulted in the following words: inscribe (to write into); and prescribe (to write before, hence to set down rules to be followed).

Letters TO THE EDITOR

Disagrees with war policy

Editor, The Record:

I am in total disagreement to the president's new reckless war policy. As most Americans have seen, involvement in Vietnam was a gigantic mistake in the first place.

While it is up to America to set a good example for the world and pull its troops unconditionally out of Southeast Asia, the president has set a very bad example for the world by first pulling out of the Paris peace talks, second escalating the bombing of North Vietnam, and if Americans sit by and don't do anything a completely re-escalated war could be in the offing, including Dow's Napalm, gigantic losses of lives, and possibly something never, as yet, experienced by us which is World War III.

While it is easy for us to forget that World War II began in an era of depression, it is not easy to prevent these same mistakes from happening again. Furthermore, I believe that it is ridiculous for us to believe the lies of one of the worst presidents in history who makes such phony claims as the war is for a generation of peace and the Communists must be kept from taking over the Saigon Government.

Doesn't it seem ironic and hypocritical that the U. S. government is supporting a Fascist dictatorship in South Vietnam after fighting Hitler so hard in World War II? Or maybe is it possible that the U. S. only conducted these wars to make a few of her oligarchs rich at the expense of the rest of the nation?

Until Americans realize that getting rich and dog eat-dogging competition is not the American dream and that going to war and fighting for your country is not patriotic but idiotic, then I'm afraid that your precious tax money will go down the drain and Americans will continue to be outraged by the results of their ignorance.

Praises school play

Editor, The Record:

I am not one to become too excited about a high school play, but my wife and I went to see "Annie Get Your Gun" at Pocono Mountain High School and believe me, this play was really great. The kids in the cast were superb.

Debbie Robertson, who played the part of Annie, is truly a great little trooper and I understand from some pretty good sources she is even better when she doesn't have a slight case of laryngitis.

I think also the teachers should be congratulated for their efforts, simply because today we hear so much about how teachers are not disciplining the kids. I think this play plainly shows a great deal of discipline. I think it also proves that not all young people are way out.

I was also impressed by the fact that a great number of young people from the high school came out and supported their fellow students.

I happen to know the many, many hours of practice that these young students put into this production and I again want to commend them and their teachers, and all the many young people who helped behind the scenes for a great job well done.

Some random thoughts

Editor, The Record:

Here are a few random thoughts to share with your readers:

1. Welfare rolls go up in Monroe County and Pennsylvania.

2. Day Care asks $10,000 from the county's commissioners.

Did these people ever think of getting off welfare and going to work? It is available, you know!

Why have people got the idea that the "Horn of Plenty" is in the county commissioners' office? Why the "gimmee act" all the time? If the people want Day Care, let the users pay their fair share to support it. Do not use tax money from the county to benefit a few.

3. The (Stroudsburg) Borough Council was short-sighted in restricting building heights in Stroudsburg to six stories. How do you expect to grow and develop with such an asinine attitude? I agree things must be planned and orderly, but I cannot see where restricting the height for buildings is of any benefit to anyone.

In the first place, I doubt if anyone would be interested in building anything one or two stories high in Stroudsburg.

Mothers don't want war

Editor, The Record:

The increased hostility in Southeast Asia forces me to write this letter.

If we believe in the Christian values that we mouth every Sunday morning in our churches, then we have a responsibility to act out our convictions.

I beg other Gold Star Mothers in Monroe County to contact me. A petition signed by us and mailed to the President of the United States would help him realize that mothers of dead sons do not uphold the much quoted statement that we must keep killing and bombing to somehow compensate for the death of our sons.

We, as broken-hearted mothers, must speak out in order to save other mothers' sons.

MRS. ARTHUR JENSEN
Stroudsburg R. D. 4

Defends Jeffrey Hart

Editor, The Record:

In "Hart needs refresher course", Benjamin Franklin taunts Jeffrey Hart, columnist, for intimating the United States might be winning the war in Southeast Asia.

Ben Franklin could be a working journalist, a student of journalism, or, even, a teacher of journalism. I wouldn't know. I am just an ordinary Joe trying to get in a word or two. But, a few things were apparent in Franklin's letter. While Jeffrey Hart wants America to win the war, Franklin wants it to lose. Losing will prove his point that Hart is not much of a journalist, for one thing. After all, pride is priceless, isn't it?

But, I didn't give Ben Franklin all the accolades I could have in the previous paragraph. Is he a working editor? Could be, for he tells the editor of The Pocono Record what "layout" to use on the editorial page.

That is, he tells him which columnists to keep and which to drop from the paper. Some of those mentioned I read and like. I disagree, though, with Franklin on three points. Hart is the best columnist the Record prints. We should win the war. And starboard is on the right. He suggests dropping Hart as a colum*nist and you would still have* "enough starboard ballast to keep the ship on an even keel."

Hart, to me, is right. He is anything but left, or leftist. Communists, totalitarians, and liberals are leftists — those who would use a cookie-cutter to fashion people. Those who allow for peoples' tastes, allow people their own thoughts and actions so long as they interfere with no one else, and who back their own country against aggression are centrists or to the right (never the left). Did I misread Franklin? Was he putting Hart in the leftist's camp?

I think Jeffrey Hart knows his job and the editor of The Pocono Record is no amateur. I enjoy your columnists who suit my taste and do not read those I find uninteresting. Jeffrey Hart I find piquant.

The original Ben Franklin is immortalized as an American Patriot.

Health questions

My little boy starts to sneeze and gets a runny nose whenever he is around a dog.

Is it possible to be allergic to dogs, and what are some of the symptoms?

Mrs. S. W., Tex.

Dear Mrs. W.:

You bet it is possible and you have just made the proper diagnosis. Your observation that he starts to sneeze and his nose runs pinpoints an allergic reaction.

Some children who are extremely allergic to dog hair and dog dander may also develop wheezing in their chests (tiring of the eyes. Your best approach would be to separate your son from dogs as much as possible.

A specialist in allergy may suggest desensitizing your son to this known offender. Consult him for his opinion.

Our daughter, now 3, weighed just less than 12 pounds at birth.

She is healthy and average size now. We worry that she will grow to be extremely tall or heavy because of her unusual birth size.

Neither my husband nor I are very large people.

Mrs. R.L., N.Y.

Dear Mrs. L.:

The fact that your child's present weight is normal should relieve your anxiety. There is nothing to suggest that such a birth weight indicates any unusual developmental changes.

Shapp may lose strength by supporting Muskie

By ARLEN J. LARGE
Dow Jones-Ottaway News

"Any time you come out in support of a candidate and he doesn't win, you of course can suffer some erosion of your own strength," says Milton Shapp, the governor of Pennsylvania.

Gov. Shapp's endorsed candidate is Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, the front-runner for the Democratic nomination, the next President of the United States . . . well, that's what the governor and a boatload of other Democratic bigwigs thought before voters began marking primary ballots last month.

Now that the Muskie boat threatens to sink, all kinds of Democratic governors, senators, congressmen and mayors face acute political embarrassment and maybe even an erosion of their strength.

Shapp's turn could come today, when Pennsylvania Democrats name their presidential preferences from a field of six candidates and choose delegates to the Miami Beach convention in July. Sen. Muskie has the help of the governor's not-yet-entrenched political organization, but Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota is backed by leaders of the Steelworkers Union and other unions strong in Pennsylvania.

Humphrey good bet

The hard-charging Humphrey, who sometimes campaigns beyond midnight, is rated a good bet to get the most votes.

That isn't the way William Moorhead had it figured when he came out for Muskie. Now the Pittsburgh congressman must ponder those chilly little political consequences of sliding beneath the waves on the Muskie boat.

"If Humphrey is nominated and goes on to the White House," says Moorhead, "obviously I wouldn't be in as good a standing with him than if Muskie made it." Shrugging, he adds: "But that's the name of the game."

One intriguing puzzle of this mid-primary season is the apparent misreading of Muskie's strength by all those high-powered professional politicians: Sen. Harold Hughes of Iowa; John Tunney of California, Stuart Symington and Thomas Eagleton of Missouri and many, many more.

They all hope he can shake off the disaster of Florida and Wisconsin by staying alive through the coming cluster of big-state northern primaries. They want him to be nominated, of course, but they'd also like to avoid being shown up as poor political prophets.

Ohio governor could burn

Next to feel his ears burn could be Gov. John Gilligan of Ohio, where Democrats elect convention delegates a week from today, on May 2. Gilligan lashed himself to the Muskie mast after rejecting advice from state AFL-CIO President Frank King to stay uncommitted until the convention.

As his car zooms along a freeway near Columbus, Gilligan expresses doubt that a Muskie defeat in Ohio will occur or that it would reflect on him politically if it did. "I wouldn't regard it as any great blow or repudiation of my administration," he says.

He has tried to influence his own followers, he insists, without using Democratic Party organization muscle or money.

"Only if I had pulled out all the stops and then came a cropper might it be fairly said that it was a defeat," he says.

But others disagree. "Gilligan has got to win this one or he's dead," declares an experienced Ohio Democrat.

Rejuvenated campaign

"The Muskie campaign will come to life in Ohio," confidently asserts Rep. Charles Vanik, one of four Ohio Democratic congressmen to back the Maine senator. Vanik, in fact, is running as a Muskie-pledgee delegate to the Miami Beach convention of a dazzling slate that shows how easy it was for big shots to be recruited in the old front-runner days.

Besides Vanik and the governor, there's Rep. James Stanton. There's ex-astronaut John Glenn, an unsuccessful Senate candidate in 1970. There's former Gov. Michael Disalle, former Sen. Stephen Young, and a clutch of high labor union officials. (Sen. Humphrey has a rival clutch, including state AFL-CIO President King.) In Pennsylvania, the celebrity on the Muskie delegate slate is James Michener, the author.

Gov. Gilligan concedes some of his own 1970 supporters are defecting to Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, who now plans a vigorous campaign for Ohio delegates in the May 2 primary.

This threatens to spoil Sen. Muskie's original hopes for a head-to-head victory over Humphrey, who faces the prospect of sharing his old-line labor constituency with Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington.

What's more, the Ohio voting will come only a week after possible Muskie setbacks in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts. Those would have a "ripple effect" in Ohio, Sen. Humphrey predicts eagerly. Today's contest in Massachusetts involves the entire Democratic field of candidates.

However, only Sen. McGovern has been campaigning hard there, in a major test of his appeal among blue-collar voters without benefit of Wisconsin-type crossovers by Republicans. Sen. Muskie has made only brief show-the-flag visits to Massachusetts.

Belfast murders increase

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—The mounting toll of individual assassinations by extremist murder squads may herald the start of a new phase in Northern Ireland violence, security sources said Monday.

At least 11 persons have been shot to death during the past week in isolated killings across the six counties. Several others have been wounded in knife and shooting attacks.

"The presence of large numbers of troops on the ground has cut down the possibility of large-scale sectarian confrontations," a security source said. "It appears this form of isolated killings may become a feature of violence."

A Roman Catholic civil rights leader, Kevin McCorry, said such violence, coupled with existing tensions between minority Catholics and majority Protestants, could still pitch the divided province into civil war.

"Unless there is an immediate halt to the campaign of violence, bombing and assassination, the results will be almost too catastrophic to contemplate," he warned.

Both Protestants and Catholics have died in the rash of assassinations, security sources said.

Most of the slayings followed the same pattern. The victim was shot from an automobile which sped from the scene before soldiers or police arrived.

In scattered violence Monday, a supermarket was destroyed in County Armagh, near the border, by explosion and fire. Police said a man suffering gunshot wounds was found at the scene.

In Coalisland, County Tyrone, five persons were arrested after a night of rioting. Troop reinforcements were moved in.

Murderer sentenced to life

MAYS LANDING, N.J. (UPI) — A 21-year-old Atlantic City man, convicted of first degree murder in the slaying of an Easton, Pa., businessman last November, was sentenced Monday to life in prison.

Judge Thomas W. Rauffenbart in Superior Court here imposed the mandatory sentence on Robert Thomas, who was convicted March 2 of the murder of William Foltz.

Foltz was fatally shot on the Atlantic City Boardwalk while strolling with his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Waldman, also of Easton.

George Rex, 17, Atlantic City, who testified during the trial that Thomas was the "trigger man" in the shooting, was sentenced to an indeterminate term in the state reformatory after pleading guilty to a reduced charge of assault with intent to rob.

Rex had been charged with murder originally, but the charge was reduced after he testified against Thomas.

Thomas also faces sentencing next week for robbery. He was convicted last week of being one of two men who picked up a hitchhiker and robbed him.

OEO approves subsidizing private, parochial schools

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The federal antipoverty agency, avoiding a potential clash with the nation's public school establishment, Monday approved an educational subsidy experiment that excludes private and parochial schools.

The Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) had been under attack for several years for even discussing a plan that would permit parents to use government funds to send their children to private and church-related as well as public schools.

Calling its first venture a "transitional" experiment, OEO announced it would grant the Alum Rock Union Elementary school district in San Jose, Calif., $65,000 now and about $2 million within a few weeks, for the first two years of the test.

Under its terms, parents of 4,000 children will be given "vouchers" to be used as a form of tuition in enrolling their children in a choice of educational programs to be offered in six Alum Rock public grade schools starting next fall.

About all of the original educational voucher concept left in the Alum Rock test is provision for a small amount of money to be used to help new, special purpose schools or educational programs develop in response to parent desires and student needs.

OEO research chief Thomas Glennan said he would have preferred a full test of the voucher idea —with the participation of private and parochial schools —but the California legislature has not approved necessary legislation and Alum Rock was the only school district ready to go ahead with any version of educational vouchers.

OEO funds will be used to support the experiment and provide about $535,000 a year to increase the value of vouchers for about 2,000 of the children from families with poverty-level incomes. The basic vouchers will be worth about $680 a year for children through sixth grade and $970 for seventh and eighth graders — the present state and local per student expenditure. The OEO poverty supplement will add about one-third to the basic voucher.

The Alum Rock district has a school population of about 4,000 students, of which 48 per cent is Mexican-American, 11 per cent black and 41 per cent white, according to OEO.

The Rand Corp. will evaluate the test, which if carried through after the first stage now approved, would last five to seven years. Glennan said he did not look for reports on results in less than three to five years.

The OEO also has gaven Gary, Ind., Seattle, Wash., San Francisco and New Rochelle, N.Y., fund to study voucher plans. Gary and Seattle dropped out of consideration and the others have not yet decided.

Critics of the voucher experiments have claimed that it would downgrade public school systems, open the way to racial segregation and violate the constitutional ban on state aid to churches. Supporters say racial and religious abuses can be eliminated from such an experiment, which would be undertaken to test the value of competition among school system to improve education and to give low income parents as well as the well-to-do the opportunity to choose the schools their children will attend.

Casey hits criticism

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Auditor General Robert P. Casey has defended his department against a hail of criticism from Gov. Milton J. Shapp.

Shapp said last week an audit of Casey's department showed there was "considerable waste of money and a superabundance of personnel to perform the work load."

The governor also said there was a "lack of proper planning and supervision" and that the department's method of conducting audits was out of date.

ROOMINATIONS

By Herb Rosen

Hollywood is in real money trouble these days. If they remade Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, they'd probably use Mickey Rooney and six mirrors to play the dwarfs.

Mother on phone to neighbor: "I understand your son gave mine a rabbit last week. Please come over and take them all back."

When a child pays attention to his parents, they're probably whispering to keep some kind of secret.

People who fly into a rage usually make a bad landing.

At least you won't have to fly anywhere else but Stroudsburg to find the service and help you need for your home. And the place is Rosen's Furniture. Mr. R. B. of Brooklyn who has a vacation home in the Poconos, writes, "Service and delivery were excellent. We don't get that kind of service here in New York City. Deliverymen most courteous and helpful."

Mrs. Jack Thomas Hineline

Evans, Hineline

STROUDSBURG — Miss Barbara Lynn Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Evans of 1531 Spruce St., Stroudsburg, and Jack Thomas Hineline, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack H. Hineline of 202 Smith St., East Stroudsburg, were married on April 8 in the Stroudsburg United Methodist Church.

The Rev. C. Paul Felton performed the afternoon ceremony. Mrs. Harold Treible was the organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white over ivory peau d'ange lace and silk organza styled with a mandarin pearled neckline, fitted bodice, long sleeves, and bouffant skirt, ending in a chapel train.

With it she wore a matching lace halo spray headpiece trimmed with seed pearls that held a fingertip illusion veil. She carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of white orchids, miniature carnations and stephanotis.

Miss Deborah Evans of Waverly, the bride's cousin, served her as her maid of honor. She wore a mint green gown trimmed with ivory lace and a matching flower halo veil. She carried a crescent bouquet of pink cimbidium orchids, miniature carnations, starflowers and red huckleberry leaves.

Miss Margaret Henning of Reading and Miss Ann Gilgallon of Kingston were the bridesmaids. They were dressed in similar attire as Miss Evans'.

Miss Lauren Evans of Media and Miss Leslie Evans of Waverly, cousins of the bride, were junior bridesmaids. They wore mint green and white gowns trimmed in mint green velvet with mint green velvet bows in their hair. They carried bouquets similar to the bridesmaids'.

Robert Turano of Honesdale was the best man and the ushers were Barry Hineline, the bridegroom's brother; Donald Motts of East Stroudsburg, the bridegroom's brother-in-law; and Edward MacLean and John Balmoos, both of Stroudsburg.

The bride's mother wore an emerald green dress and matching jacket trimmed with a jeweled neckline. She wore a white orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a beige dress with a lace top and accordion-pleated crepe skirt. She wore a corsage of pink roses.

A reception followed at the Penn Stroud Hilton after which the couple left on a motor trip to Williamsburg, Va., Jamestown and Virginia Beach.

The bride is a graduate of Stroudsburg High School and Pennsylvania State University. She is an elementary teacher for the Stroudsburg Area School District.

Her husband is a graduate of East Stroudsburg High School, Keystone Junior College and the National Aviation Academy at Clearwater, Fla. He is currently employed by Coolbaugh and Hineline, Building Contractors.

Upon their return, the couple will reside in the 2000 block of W. Main St., Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Ann George elected state federation president

LEBANON — Mrs. H. Berton George of White Heron Lake, Marshalls Creek, 'Anne' as she is known locally, was recently elected president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Music Clubs at the state convention held in Lebanon.

Mrs. George has served the local Music Study Club in many capacities, including two terms as president. She has been a member since 1938. In 1966 she re-activated the Junior Music Study Club which had disbanded during World War II. After the first year, the membership increased and the Junior club became the Pocono Junior and Juvenile Music Study Clubs.

Mrs. H. Berton George

Since moving to Stroudsburg in 1935, she has been actively engaged in the promotion of music and projects which involve the young, serious musician. Mrs. George worked for the Pocono Community Concert Association for 25 years, serving as membership campaign chairman and as president.

She has been chairman of the Music Club's opera trip for six years; is a past president of the Stroudsburg Business and Professional Woman's Club; was a board member of the Mid Atlantic Music Center; served for many years in the choirs of the East Stroudsburg and Stroudsburg United Methodist Churches; and is at present the chairman of the music committee of the East Stroudsburg church which has a program for five graded choirs. She served her church as soloist between 1942 and 1963.

Mrs. George began studying voice at the age of 14 and continued her studies with private teachers in Indiana, Harrisburg, and Stroudsburg.

Her federation commitments have been as chairman of the Stillman Kelley Scholarship in 1964 and as state junior counselor from 1965 to 1968. She was elected vice president of the Pennsylvania Federation in 1968 and assumed the office of editor of the state publication "The News Sheet" and has compiled the state roster and directory for the last four years.

This year she was appointed chairman of the scholarship to Wolf Trap Farm of the American Academy of Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. Other state duties were as a member of the state conventions committee, finance committee, and as a member of the Harvey Gaul Award committee.

As state president, she will be a member of the National Council of State Presidents and will assume a national chairmanship.

Benson, Grodecki rites held

STROUDSBURG — Miss Maryann Benson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Herdman of Laurel Street, Stroudsburg, and Adam J. Grodecki, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Grodecki of Philadelphia, were married on Saturday, April 22 at St. Luke's Church.

Miss Christine Grodecki was the maid of honor, and Dr. Edward Swiatkowski of Philadelphia, the bridegroom's cousin, served as best man. A reception followed at the Carriage House.

The bride is a graduate of Stroudsburg High School and Temple University. Her husband was graduated from St. Joseph's College in Philadelphia.

The couple are both employed by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in the Bureau of Health Insurance.

They will reside in the Brookshire Trace Apartments in the Somerton section of Philadelphia.

Summer head named for Camp Archbald

SCRANTON — Jeanne M. Gordon, executive director of the Scranton Pocono Girl Scout Council, has announced that Mrs. John Freiler Jr. will direct Camp Archbald for the second consecutive season.

The camp, which serves girls from Lackawanna, Monroe, Pike, Susquehanna, Wayne, and Wyoming Counties, will open on Sunday, June 25, and close on Friday, August 18. The camp is located near Brooklyn in Susquehanna County.

Mrs. Freiler, who is training director for the council, has been a counselor and waterfront director at Camp Archbald while a college student. She was graduated from Pennsylvania State University with a degree in recreation education.

Since her graduation she has been employed as a district director, assistant camp director, and training director for the council. She has also been a day camp director with TOFS (Troops on Foreign Soil) in West Germany, a troop consultant and day camp director at Fort Dix, N.J., and a day camp site director at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Mrs. Freiler will be assisted by Jane Behlke. Miss Behlke is a graduate of Marywood College and is employed as a district director for the council.

School sets early closing for summer

TANNERSVILLE — The Pocono Elementary Center P.T.A. met recently during which it was decided to purchase ice cream, flowers and trophies for May Day activities at the school to be held May 30 or 31.

The nominating committee presented the following slate of officers for the 1972-73 school year which were elected: President, Mrs. Alan Vetter; vice president, Mrs. Pardee Place; secretary, Mrs. Barry Weltmer; treasurer, Mrs. Russell Hooey.

Joseph Murraz, transportation supervisor, spoke on busing problems, including breakdowns, drivers, schedules, discipline, monitors and maintenance of buses.

School will close four days early this year because there were no winter closings for inclimate weather, he reported.

Society to buy 30 choir robes

STROUDSBURG — During a recent meeting of the Stroudsburg Methodist Women's Society of Christian Service, it was voted to begin a fund to purchase 30 new choir robes for the Senior Choir.

Information may be obtained from Mrs. Douglas Kitson. A dinner for both choirs will be prepared by the WSCS in May, to be paid for by the church fund.

Pancake brunch plans finalized

TANNERSVILLE — The Pocono Township Ladies Auxiliary met recently during which several products were demonstrated for fund raising projects.

Final plans were made for the Pancake Brunch to be held from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. on Sunday, April 30 at the firehouse in Tannersville. The menu includes pancakes, sausage, juice and coffee. Donations will be $1.50 for adults and $1 for children under six.

The brunch will benefit the fire company's building fund. Auxiliary members will meet at 7:30 p.m. on April 29 to make final preparations.

Hospital volunteers honored

EAST STROUDSBURG — The General Hospital of Monroe County's annual candy-striper award banquet was held recently at the Holiday Inn in East Stroudsburg with a buffet supper served before the award presentation.

Charles E. Swisher Jr., hospital administrator, and Mrs. Evelyn A. Primrose, director of volunteers, presented a candy-striper pin for 300 hours of service to Marie Moreken.

Certificates for 50 hours and over were received by: Janice Albanese, Donna Brucher, Gina Belli, Valerie Ciccone, Cathy Ann Sabatine, Kathy Joy Serfass and Lori Ann Sweet.

Caps were received by: Karen Achterman, Deborah Christine, Beverly Lohr, Diana Martina, Susan Melnick, Lynn Miller, Debbie Pysher, Kim Sabatine, Peggy Sexton, Barbara Shively and Kim Wilush.

Conservation award given

STROUDSBURG — Robert Owermohle Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Owermohle of Hemlock Farms, Lords Valley, is the recipient of the Pennsylvania Junior Conservation Camp Award presented by the Monroe County Garden Club.

A ninth grade student at Notre Dame High School, he will attend the Stone Valley Recreation area of Pennsylvania State University from July 9 to 22.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

ATHENS, GREECE — Reunion in Athens: Would you believe that coming down to breakfast at the King George on Constitution Square in Athens we should meet Mrs. Jerry Avlon and Mary Smith, just in from Corfu and were followed into the breakfast room by Sovan and Marcia De Rocco? Eight people from Stroudsburg at once and by chance!

But we've come to expect wonders and miracles as a matter of course. Our days of leisure in Athens have been fascinating, climaxed by our tour of the Acropolis. Hanging above the city like a mirage, it appears as if by magic around many a strange corner and at night, floodlighted, seems to float above the city out the window of our rooftop restaurant, a part of the decor like the great bowl of Easter lilies and the giant ornate candelabra with the multiple candles leaning drunkenly.

So when the mirage turned out to be real — fallen pillars you had to skirt, blocks of marble on which to sit or stand or take pictures, the miracle was renewed all over again. We parked by the hill of Mars and climbed the marble steps through the great gate into the Golden Age of Pericles — of the fifth century B.C. — when, it seemed, man most nearly reached the perfection for which he has striven.

The temples were built by free men to worship their gods. The gemlike temple of the Wingless Victory, the towering gates, the massive yet soaring columns of the Parthenon dedicated to Athena, the maidens of Cargatides holding up the Portico of the Erechtheion are so much a part of our heritage like the names of Aeschylus, Plato, Praxiteles, of the Olympic games.

So long ago, so incredibly rich and beautiful, it was hard to leave it to come down to the traffic, the jostling crowds, the littleness of ordinary mortals in modern Athens.

But they also have their fascination I discovered in my rambles during the "morning at leisure" . . . tiny streets with tiny shops, fish next to jewelry, fruit and a record shop.

If you want a spot where no tourists go — try the National Museum of History — no guide, no guidebooks, no tourists, so you wander around among pictures of battles on land and sea — costumes, uniforms, swords, robes and mustached portraits of unknown people renowned for unknown things.

Except for Byron — still a great Greek hero with a whole room devoted to his exploits on behalf of Greek independence. I'm writing this at a sidewalk cafe — still inclined to pinch myself to be sure it's real. From here I will vanish on a cruise of the Greek Islands.

Coccia, Rice nuptials held

ROSETO — Miss Michelle Coccia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Coccia of 577 Fairview Ave., Bangor, and Tilghman Rice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tilghman Rice of 452 Broad St., Pen Argyl, were married on Saturday, April 22 at Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Church in Roseto.

The Rev. James Prior performed the afternoon ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long white empire gown of English net with a high, old fashioned neckline, scalloped hem and chapel train. A floor-length veil, appliqued with lace, fell from her all-lace headpiece. She carried a bouquet of white roses mixed with baby's breath.

Mrs. Jennifer Long of Washington, N.J., was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Renee Branch of Pen Argyl, Miss Philomena Camilletti of Bangor, Miss Joanne Coccia of Bangor, and Miss Karen Knapp of Pen Argyl.

Joseph Russo of Johnsonville was the best man and the ushers were Joseph Coccia and James Malazzo, both of Bangor, and James Dotta and Renato Belletti, both of Pen Argyl.

Mrs. Tilghman Rice

A reception followed at the Blue Valley Farm Show Auditorium for approximately 300 guests. Music was provided by Ronnie and the Revelations.

The bride was graduated from Pius X High School in Roseto and is currently employed by Craf-Mar Manufacturing in Bangor.

Following a wedding trip to Hawaii, the couple will reside in Bangor.

Did Julie Eisenhower miss calling as teacher?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Backstairs at the White House:

Julie Nixon Eisenhower may have missed her calling when she decided to be a teacher.

The President's 23-year-old daughter has done the editorial work on a new book "Eye on Nixon" featuring photographs of the President from inauguration day through his China trip. White House photographers gave it rave reviews.

"She was very savvy about the photos," said chief photographer Ollie Atkins. She went through literally hundreds of photographs and Atkins said that she did not "just pick out the pretty, pretty ones of her father," but made a selection revealing of the man.

"She worked hard on this," he said.

The book, published by the Hawthorne Publishing Company, owned by Nixon's friend, Chicago insurance executive W. Clement Stone, went to the press this weekend. It will go on sale for $5.95 in late May with the royalties going to the Red Cross.

Although it was previously announced that the First Lady would write the introduction, it turned out that job also fell to Julie.

The book will include some 50 official color shots of the President and even one photograph of the President himself making a picture of prize winning White House photographers in his office. Camera in hand, he is shown as properly squinting to take the picture.

"I think it will be the proudest thing I've done here," said Atkins, who contributed many of the photographs.

National Securities Affairs Adviser Henry A. Kissinger has been staying out of the official limelight as he quarterbacks White House moves in South Vietnam.

But he couldn't resist the opportunity to come out and meet the visiting Chinese ping pong team when the President greeted the players in the Rose Garden.

Seizing the moment, reporters rushed up to Kissinger and asked him if he would like to comment on the bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong. "Absolutely not," said Kissinger.

Kissinger kept his sense of humor though and he quipped that he had planned to challenge the team to a game of ping pong. But since they had an unbroken winning streak he did not want to upset the diplomatic apple cart. He teased that he was sure he would have won.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird was overheard saying at the White House that Sen. J. William Fulbright is "an aggressor" —on the golf course.

Laird said that both he and Fulbright play the same course, often together, and he finds that Fulbright is a tough competitor.

Laird made the remark after testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Fulbright, who is chairman, put him on the hot seat with questions about the administration's Vietnam policy. Observers said that Fulbright and Laird always seemed to be talking past each other during the question and answer session, each making his own point in his own way.

Lady Bird Johnson has left her mark on the nation's capital. The flowers are in bloom everywhere in the many city parks and public grounds. And Washingtonians are quick to say that her beautification program while she lived in the White House is a permanent monument to a First Lady who cared about the beauty of this capital and its perpetuation.

Warning issued by SPCA agent

STROUDSBURG — Edwin Cantrill, area agent for the Monroe County Branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has warned area residents he will thoroughly investigate and prosecute any person believed guilty of poisoning or maiming animals.

Citing the punishment stated in the Digest of Laws of Pennsylvania on Cruelty to Animals which provides for a $1,000 fine or three years in jail or both for those found guilty of the crime, Cantrill said the law applies not only to domestic animals but to all wildlife.

Section 941, Act of 1939 states in part, "Whoever willfully and maliciously kills, maims or disfigures any domestic animal of another person or willfully or maliciously, administers poison to any such animals or exposes any poisonous substance, with intent that the same shall be taken or swallowed by animals, fowl or birds is guilty".

Authority to meet

SWIFTWATER — The Pocono Mountain Joint School Authority will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the high school at Swiftwater.

Capitol opinion

Three Democratic scripts identical

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Edmund Muskie, Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern are using the same script in Pennsylvania.

At each campaign stop, they promise to beat Nixon, end the war, close tax loopholes for big business and create new jobs.

In other words, the only thing that will separate them in today's Democratic primary election will be their vote-getting ability.

A trend already is shaping up.

Humphrey appears headed for victory in the non-binding "popularity poll" on the ballot. McGovern and Muskie will be involved in a tight race for second.

In the race for the state's 137 elected convention delegates, Humphrey and Muskie are running neck and neck. McGovern will be third.

There is no way to gauge Alabama Gov. George Wallace's strength because he has done almost no campaigning in Pennsylvania. He will grab a chunk of the vote, but it probably will not hurt any other single candiate.

Henry Jackson's showing will be weak. Shirley Chisholm's delegate candidates may take some votes away from McGovern. Neither of these two have campaigned in Pennsylvania

Powerful Lineup

Humphrey has relied on support from old-time Democratic politicians, the labor leaders, blacks and the Jewish community. That is a powerful lineup.

The Minnesota Democrat is an exciting campaigner. He moves fast, plunges deep into big crowds, delivers rousing speeches and comes out of it able to laugh at himself.

Muskie is just the opposite. He wears a long face, speaks in emphatically serious tones and shows a deep-felt dislike for the news media.

Muskie's vote-getting power lies with Gov. Milton J Shapp, who endorsed the Maine senator last January before his popularity began to slip.

In areas where Shapp commands the local political machine, Muskie has support. But where Shapp has made enemies, Muskie does not have a prayer.

A poor organizer, Muskie probably would have been lost in a big state like Pennsylvania without Milton Shapp. Muskie's performance here will be a good test of the governor's power.

Muskie originally decided to concentrate on Pennsylvania — cutting back on his campaigning in the simultaneous Massachusetts election because he wanted to bump Humphrey out of the race. At this point, there is no chance that will happen.

McGovern, meanwhile, has been laying the foundation for a big win in Massachusetts. Confident of his support in that state, McGovern returned this week to Pennsylvania for some last minute stumping.

McGovern's campaign style is calm, thoughtful. He seems to have a better long-range plan than Muskie or Humphrey. His strategy is to come up out of both Pennsylvania and Massachusetts with more delegates than anyone.

If he does it, McGovern will be the real victor.

In both New Hampshire and Wisconsin, McGovern's popularity began to bloom as the election grew closer — particularly in the blue collar areas. The same thing seems to be happening in Pennsylvania.

McGovern's supporters are a strange mix of suburban liberals, college students and disgruntled working men.

McGovern is also the only candidate who cannot get hurt in the Pennsylvania primary. He never really pegged his campaign on this state. Whatever he gets here is gravy.

For Muskie and Humphrey, the Pennsylvania primary is crucial. They are both in the same situation. As Humphrey puts it:

"I need a win here next week to give me the impetus I need. If it is nip and tuck, it will be a washout and we will have to go on to Ohio (May 2)."

But neither Humphrey nor Muskie will give up easily. It would take a very bad showing to discourage Humphrey, but Muskie is even less likely to back off if he falls flat in Pennsylvania.

"I'm in this fight to stay and don't listen to those who say otherwise," Muskie told a group of Democrats this week. "I'm in it until Nov. 7."

Truck flips over

STROUDSBURG — A 35-year-old Cresco man was treated and released at the General Hospital of Monroe County after his truck flipped Thursday on Rt. 191 near Penn Hills. The man, William R. Stewart, was traveling north when he lost control of his pickup truck, striking a culvert, flipping on his side and skidding to a halt in the Tee-a-Rama parking lot. Stroud Township police said the truck was a total loss.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

It is a basic rule that the player who initiates Blackwood assumes the role of captain in deciding whether to stop at a game or a slam.

But like every good rule the principle is not inflexible, and there are times when responder can override the captain and make the final decision.

However, he should be extremely careful about exercising this prerogative, and in fact about the only time he can properly use his own judgment is after the four notrump inquiry for aces is followed by five notrump for kings.

At this point, if he has important values not previously disclosed, responder may disregard the query for kings and jump directly to seven. This is because five notrump guarantees that all four aces are accounted for and very clearly displays interest in a grand slam.

Here is a typical case. Let's say North decides to use Blackwood after South reponds to the club bid with a heart. There is considerable doubt about North's best bid over a heart, but let's assume he jumps to four notrump.

South responds five diamonds, showing one ace, and then six diamonds, showing one king.

When North now bids six hearts, South should not timely pass on the basis that his partner is captain and cannot be overruled. It is clear now that North has huge support for hearts, despite his obviously limited club strength.

Since South has a surprise club holding that includes the K-Q and the Q-10 of trumps as well, he should go on to seven with very high confidence in the outcome. To pass would show a lack of faith in partner.

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — The disgracefully anti-Biblical reversal of Christ's tragedy in "Jesus Christ Superstar" will be totally tossed out in the Norman Jewison movie version, set to film in Israel this August: Jewison states the movie will be "the rock opera's definitive dramatic work, completely different from any concert or theatrical presentation of the property"; in the N. Y. stage version, the Christ role is reversed to a whining, unsure, insecure oaf; the traitor Judas becomes a mod-hero. Anything will be an improvement.

"Lost in the Stars," beautiful in its tragic note of racial hope, a musical revived after more than 20 years at the Imperial Theater (it had its premiere right next door at the Music Box in the 40s), will be a test for Broadway audiences: it is more operatic, in its heartbreaking, grieving beauty and tho it is getting several of the finest performances ever seen on Broadway, it lacks leavening humor or wit.

Brock Peters all but destroys himself and the audience with his powerful performance as clergyman to a back-country black flock in South Africa; his real tears and despair were monumental in their intensity, rising to a majestic explosion after proceeding from calm intelligence, terror and doubt: his son kills a white man, is sentenced to be hanged, and attains richly subtle nobility in his refusal to take a dishonest path to freedom.

Gilbert Price as the son, Absalom, is a powerfully proficient actor, credibly frightened, and finally unable to do or say anything untruthful . . . The lad is hanged, but not in vain as black and white fathers join their grief in hope for their apartheid world.

The music of course is by Kurt Weill, lyrics and libretto by Maxwell Anderson, among the most beautiful heard on Broadway in eons. Not to be light about it, but bring plenty of Kleenex.

Ex-pug Coley Wallace's brother Al (a Lindsay municipal appointee) has written a script about black-white relations (take that several ways) which sounds fascinatingly dramatic; he's looking for a producer . . . We noted herein that "Nancy with the Laughing Face" was not written originally (by Phil Silvers and Jimmy Van Heusen) for Frank Sinatra's daughter but for Bessie Burke, first wife of the late Oscar-winning songwriter Johnny Burke (the "Nancy" was "Bessie" originally); herein the irony: the same Bessie Burke now is Sinatra's housekeeper.

The Melvyn Douglases traipsed all the way in from Vermont to the "Lost in the Stars" opening . . . The Art Carneys mushed all the way from E. 72nd St. . . . Maureen O'Sullivan smiled all the way to the premiere from her surgeon's; she looks decades younger . . . The tall blonde beauty whose pulchritude stopped traffic in the Imperial's aisles was Connie Towers, one of the great beauties of showbiz.

In "21" after theater, the Vin Draddys (Vin's the popular "7th Ave. Irishman," an ethnic oddity in the teeming Jewish-Italian garment center), who'd folded their intentions and silently stole away from "Two Gentlemen of Verona," completely forgetting the generation gap between its rock music and Vin's Gershwin-Rodgers-Youmans preferences . . . The Jack Wrathers (Bonita Granville) brightened the "21" corner where they supped . . . Peter Ustinov gave Jack and Charlie's a tony British corner white author Stephen Birmingham entertained "Our Crowd."

Elsewhere: Jeanne Murray Vanderbilt was perambulating her new grandson, Jack Gwynn Harris (Alf Vanderbilt is the maternal grandpop), at Madison Ave. and 58th St., kootchy-cooing as if it were her own (and looking the role), but daughter Heidi (Mrs. Jones) Harris toddled along behind.

Hints to bosses

Dear Ann Landers: You often have pointers in your column on how to be a better wife, husband, mother-in-law, neighbor, or friend. I have never seen any helpful hints on how to be a better boss. I've never been a boss, but I have been a secretary for 18 years and I'd like to make a few suggestions.

(1) It costs nothing to say "good morning" when you come in and "good evening" when you leave. Just acknowledging your secretary's existance will help her feel she is something more than a walking typewriter.

(2) When your secretary tells you she cannot read your hand-writing, try not to make any cracks about her eyesight. Next time she might not ask what you meant. She'll just put it down the way it looks — and you'll be sorry.

(3) You married your wife, your secretary didn't marry her. It's a wife's duty to shop for family gifts, write party invitations and thank-you notes.

(4) If your secretary makes a mistake, wait until you can inform her privately. Don't correct or castigate her in the presence of other executives or worse yet, in front of other secretaries. A good boss is also a gentleman. Sign me

Chicago

Dear Chi: Here's your letter. As a boss who employs 11 secretaries I took a good, hard look at your suggestions and I see one I might learn from. Thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in response to Wife Number Two who objected to her husband's children removing their deceased mother's fine china, silver and paintings from their father's home.

I am a woman who has collected some exquisite objects of art through the years and when I am gone I want my daughter — not a second wife — to enjoy them. I can't imagine my husband marrying a woman who did not have some nice things of her own to fill the empty spaces and cover the holes in the wall where my lovely paintings once hung.

I have instructed my daughter to remove my treasures immediately after my death and take them to her home. It is my wish that she enjoy them and pass them on to her children. I hope other mothers will do the same.

Looking Ahead In Racine

Dear Looking: "Instructions" won't hold up in court if there is a dispute. What is needed is a will. Call a lawyer and make it legal.

Dear Ann Landers: I notice a lot of people write to you about things that aren't really problems. They just need to know how to handle a clumsy situation. Maybe you can help me as you've helped others.

I work in a parking lot. Part of my duties include cashiering. I always count the customer's change out loud when I hand it back — and then I say a cheerful "Thank you!" Some of my customers reply, "You're welcome." Others say, "Thank YOU..." in a higher voice than mine, with the emphasis on YOU — as if to say, "You are the one who should be thanked."

My parking lot is self-serve and self-lock. The customer does everything. All I do is take the money. I feel I should not be thanked for enjoying their business. I should thank them. If someone says, "Thank you" should I respond with, "No — Thank You."

Pittsburgh Ron

Dear P.R.: If a customer wants to thank you — let him. Three thank-you's in the space of three seconds is one too many.

Boy master

By Jean Adams

FORBIDDEN: (Q): My boy friend doesn't want me to go out with my girl friends. In fact he won't let me. I tried it once, about six months ago, and he beat me.

I want to break up with him. There is another boy I sort of like and would like to try going with. But I told my boy friend I wanted to break up and he wouldn't listen to me.

We have been going together three years. What should I do?

17 in Michigan

(A): You don't have a boy friend. You have a master, a boss. Quit letting this happen to you. Quit going with him, whether you go with some other boy or not.

Tell him you are breaking up with him. He will hear you. Then have nothing further to do with him.

If he threatens you or harms you, go to your parents or the police.

OVER-EXPOSED: (Q): My mother does not close the door when she takes a bath. After she is finished she walks out without anything on. She walks all over the house that way, until she takes a notion to put something on.

When she dresses, she does not put on a bra. She usually wears a see-through blouse or a T-shirt, and you can see how she looks underneath.

My father is gone most of the time, and she goes around with almost nothing on. Lots of time she wears no top. Part of the time she wears no shoes. She goes to the supermarket in a see-through blouse without a bra.

This makes me mad. Please tell me how to get her to stop.

Upset Son, Age 14, in Florida

(A): Talk to her about it. Tell her you are upset. If she doesn't change, talk to your father when he is at home.

Mothers can do harm by overexposing themselves to their teenage sons. Fathers can do the same to their daughters.

DEMOCRATS

Don't waste your vote . . .

There's too much at stake this year to waste your vote by staying home or letting the bosses choose the Democratic candidate for president. Because Senator George McGovern led the fight for party reform and delegate selection, this year you can elect the majority of delegates and know who they support.

Senator George McGovern has proven over and over again in the Senate and in the primaries that he has the guts, leadership, honesty and vote-getting power to unite the Democrats and win in 1972. He is determined to end wasteful government spending and force the rich and the big corporations to bear their fair share of the tax burden. He has spelled out his programs to end the war, control crime and drugs, and protect the environment.

1,415 countians use food stamps

HARRISBURG — Food Stamp Program participation was up in Pennsylvania during February as an additional 16,188 low income persons benefitted from the food assistance program, boosting the total to 645,873.

In Monroe County, a total of 1,415 persons participated, including 908 public assistance cases. Total value was $35,442, including a purchase value of $20,396 and a bonus value of $15,046.

According to the Department of Agriculture's Northeast Regional Food and Nurtition Service office in New York City, the biggest increase was reported in Philadelphia, where participation was up by 6,351 persons.

During February, food stamp participants paid $9,171,170 for food stamps valued at $15,798,960. The difference of $6,627,790 — or bonus value — enabled each to increase his food purchasing power by $10.26.

An increasing number of persons not receiving public assistance took advantage of the program during the month. The percentage rose to 29 per cent.

A county-by-county breakdown shows 242 participating in Pike County, including 156 public assistance cases. Total value was $3,294.

In Northampton County, 6,121 people participated; 4,865 of whom received public assistance. Total value was $163,288.

In Wayne County, 1,093 participated, including 353 public assistance persons. Total value was $22,591.

Carbon County had 1,737 participants, with 1,084 on public assistance. Total value was $33,996.

Public service award nomination now open

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania League for Civil Service is seeking nominations for its annual public service awards, a program to recognize outstanding career employes of state and local government.

Patrick M. Greene, chairman of the nonpartisan citizens' organization, said, "League awards are open to all local and state government employes, including judicial and legislative, and to non-instructional employes of public school systems.

"We hope nominations will warrant awards to a representative number of employes from all branches of government."

Nominations may be submitted by the employing agency or by a community newspaper. The deadline is May 7. Awards will be presented at the seventh annual awards dinners scheduled for June 7 at the Penn Harris Motor Inn, Harrisburg.

To be eligible for nomination, an employe must have served at least five years in a civil service position or at least 10 years in a non-civil service position.

Nominations should be based on one or more of the following:

—Effecting significant improvement in specific government operations for which the employe has administrative or technical responsibility.

—Developing a solution to a specific problem confronting the employe's unit of government.

—Improving the coordination of related government programs, resulting in better services, increased efficiency, or savings in operations.

Nominations should be mailed before May 7 to PLCS Awards Committee, 933 Kranzel Drive, Camp Hill, Pa., 17011.

Firemen's audits pass inspections

Record Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — The accounts of the firemen's relief associations of Barrett, Smithfield and Tobyhanna Townships have been audited by the State Auditor General's Department and gained departmental approval, Auditor General Robert P. Casey reported Monday.

The Barrett Township Firemen's Relief Association audit for 1970 shows that $5,478.86 was received from State allocations, $12,500 from investments sold and $1,851.67 from interest income, which coupled with a January 1, 1970 balance of $7,014.31 gave the fund a total of $26,844.84.

Expenditures during the year amounted to $19,690.15 including $15,112.71 in investments purchased, $3,748.24 in insurance premiums, $709.20 in protective equipment and $120 in secretary's salary, leaving a cash balance of $7,154.69.

Investments as of December 31 comprised $10,000 in bonds at cost and $15,112.71 in stocks at cost which added to the cash balance gave the association a January 1, 1971 balance of $32,267.40.

In the case of Shawnee Firemen's Relief Association, Smithfield Township, the audit report showed the association starting 1970 with a balance of $772.29, with receipts during the year embracing $678.19 in State allocations and $257.50 in interest income, for a fund total of $1,707.98.

Expenditures during the year amounted to $747.25 — $334.25 in insurance premiums, $260 in medical benefits, $150 in death benefits and $3 in safety deposit box rental, leaving a cash balance of $960.73. The cash balance plus $5,000 in investments (Certificates of Deposit) gave the account a balance of $5,960.73 as of January 1, 1971.

Tobyhanna Township Firemen's Relief Association started the year 1970 with a balance of $9,217.27 while receipts during the year comprised $2,735.98 in State allocations and $356.42 in interest income, for a fund total of $12,309.67.

Association expenditures amounted to $3,539.57 broken down as follows: Insurance premiums, $2,005.32; protective equipment, $1,034; death benefits, $500, and bank charges, .25 cents, leaving a cash balance of $8,770.10. The cash balance plus $15,512.02 in investments (type not specified) gave the account a balance of $24,282.12 as of January 1, 1971.

Latest blood drive nets 83 pints

STROUDSBURG — A final tabulation of the results of the blood drive sponsored Friday by the employes union of the Bell Telephone Co. shows that 83 pints were collected.

The drive, held at the First Presbyterian Church of Stroudsburg, was the first sponsored by the telephone company employes in recent years.

Red Cross officials indicated they were pleased with the effect of the "new sponsor." The drive only lasted five hours.

The next blood drive will be held May 22 at the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church. Sponsoring the effort will be the Stroudsburg Ministerium.

Building question creates heat at directors' meeting

By CONRAD GROVE
Pocono Record Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg Superintendent Pauline Peterson called for direction from the school board Monday night on the district's building hassle and got more heat than light in return.

"We're at the point now where we have more children than we can house—and give adequate instruction," she told members, proceeding to rattle off statistics pointing to overcrowded conditions.

In the board's March meeting, she said the district is faced with two alternatives: Plan for a middle school or add 10 rooms to the Middle Smithfield school to compensate for the federal government's takeover of the Bushkill facility, earmarked for the Tocks project. .

"My personal opinion is East Stroudsburg can't afford to build now," shot back Irving Sommer, board chairman. He called for year-around school or split-sessions as alternatives.

Mrs. Peterson replied "you should start planning and move in a direction." Total enrollment in the district is roughly 2,700; building capacities are 2,474.

"Once we commit ourselves, we're going to be hung for a school," said Sommer. "Only because we're the poorest district is why I don't want to commit ourselves. Parents will be paying for a long, long time."

Sommer said he didn't know whether to blame the federal government for the district's shaky financial status. The district has received no indication how much will be received for the Bushkill takeover.

"We can only blame the eyes of the children we see in school," rebutted Mrs. Peterson.

Sommer then asked "how terrible" split-sessions would be. He was told by John Lambert, elementary education director, split-sessions were tried (about 12 years ago) in the J.S. Bunnell School and "the community went up in arms" plus the program wasn't educationally sound.

Mrs. Peterson then noted it takes at least three years to plan for a new building. "I cannot, I cannot, take care of all the children we're going to have next year," she lamented, contending seven additional classrooms are needed.

"We're going to have to do something else," Sommer stated. "I don't think the community will be ready in three years for a $4 million school. Can't we at least wait and evaluate our assessment figures when they come in August?"

Sommer said he had no objections to including some $16,000 in next year's budget for planning costs, but showed no indications of approving the middle school concept.

In concluding remarks, Mrs. Peterson stressed "I want to go on record as saying if and when we get the Tocks Island boom . . . no one can say we don't know the situation. I'm just as cognizant of money as you are."

Planners urge law change

TANNERSVILLE — Conceding a regulation in the zoning code was discriminatory toward home owners, the Pocono Township Planning and Zoning Commission moved the supervisors change the rule Monday night.

The motion was prompted by the second visit of Ralph Altman, a local contractor, who for the past several months has sought a clarification of the code regarding homes in R-1 zones which set a minimum square footage of 960 feet for homes and no limitation on house trailers.

Since the contractor has several clients who would like to build single family dwellings of less than the specified footage in the municipality, he had previously requested a rectification from the planners. The matter had been turned over to Solicitor Detleff Hansen who has not yet made a recom*mendation.*

The motion sparked further discussion on the aesthetic value of having house trailers in a R-1 zone, which is the most restrictive of all areas sanctioned by the township.

Several members expressed dislike for the location of trailers saying a small house located on a one-acre lot (the minimum size required) would be more in keeping with the likes of the planners although the supervisors have killed previous moves to exclude trailers.

Preliminary plan

Richard Feinberg, representing Pocono Haven which recently purchased a tract of land adjoining the existing development, presented a preliminary plan for Pocono Haven Village, a 50.66 acre tract designed for 406 units with 29 buildings housing 14 units each.

Although the planners did not take any official action of the matter, they pointed out some discrepancies while Feinberg was there. After Feinberg left, several members noted the development was not to their liking.

Along with proposed heavy traffic on one access road serving both developments, the planning commission members spoke of high density buildings for which the owners are seeking a variance.

As presented, and without a variance, the development would not meet with the one acre required minimum for single family dwellings.

Feinberg spoke of the development as an asset to the community noting the cost of the units would be equal to a tenant paying about $105 to $145 per month rent. He pointed out all units will be for purchase only with price ranging from $15,000 for a single bedroom unit to $22,000 for a three bedroom unit.

Ecology program approved

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg School directors approved an environmental education program Monday night for sixth and seventh graders encompassing overnight camping at Sky's Edge Environmental Learning Center near Dingman's Ferry.

Teachers, parents and a school nurse will supervise each group. The program includes two and one-half days for sixth graders and one and one-half days for seventh grade pupils.

Emphasis throughout the experience will be on preservation of natural resources and maintenance of environmental qualities.

Dates selected for sixth grade classes were May 15-17 and 17-19 and June 5-7 and 7-9. Sixty seventh graders will go on a first come, first served basis on May 22-23.

In other action, the board authorized its solicitor, Alex Bensinger, to request the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation place warning signs on Rt. 209 above Bushkill Falls.

The route was labeled a "danger area" by Superintendent Pauline Peterson. Earlier this year, a truck jackknifed into a home where 15 students wait for buses.

Blue Cross official to talk at annual hospital dinner

EAST STROUDSBURG — Ralph Smith, president of Northeastern Pennsylvania Blue Cross, will be the keynote speaker at the General Hospital of Monroe County's second annual Service Awards Banquet scheduled for May 10 at the Fernwood.

The event will highlight National Hospital Week and Pennsylvania Nurse Week.

In addition to other awards, two members of the hospital's volunteer board of directors, Judge Arlington W. Williams and William W. Malleson, Jr., will be honored for having in excess of 25 years of continuous service. Judge Williams has served for 42 years and Malleson has served for 25 years.

Also, for the first time, the hospital's medical staff will present a distinguished service award to a staff physician who has "consistently performed service above and beyond the call of duty to patient, hospital, community and fellow physicians."

Nominations for the award were submitted by physicians of the medical staff. The recipient of the award was selected by a committee.

'No' Tocks vote may mean death of recreation area

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County voters who vote "no" today on the construction of the Tocks Island Dam may be voting "no" on the creation of the national recreation area whether they know it or not.

The second question heading the ballot asks if the land being purchased for the Tocks project should be used for a recreation area if the dam is no constructed. If the dam is voted down, that question may be moot.

The authorization of the national recreation area in 1965, three years after the authorization of the dam, was contingent upon the construction of the dam.

If voters say no to the dam, and if that sentiment somehow pervades the Tocks region and makes its way to Washington, the dam may just be struck down.

Should the dam be struck down, the recreation area will have to be reauthorized. It is questionable that Congress will be willing to spend money for a national recreation area if the needs to be served by the dam are not part of the package.

The ramifications of a no vote on the Tocks issue have not been brought to light in the pre-election preparations, but indications from a straw poll are that voters are two to one against the dam and two to one in favor of the recreation project.

Today's vote is nonbinding, but it will be the first public sampling of public opinion in Monroe County on the Tocks issue since the dam was authorized 10 years ago.

Opposition expected

Opinion is expected to run against the dam.

What may be official is the use made of a no vote on the Tocks project by Monroe County officials.

Monroe County Commission Chairman Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis said she will be guided by the will of the people on the Tocks issue. Mrs. Shukaitis has been an opponent of the project since its inception.

Mrs. Shukaitis has said she would encourage a similar vote on the ballot in Warren and Sussex Counties when New Jersey holds a primary June 6.

With Mrs. Shukaitis holding the chair, the Monroe County Commissioners may be asked to change their official position in favor of the Tocks project after the vote is taken.

Whatever the official posi*tion of the county on the* federal project, the Tocks Island Dam will not depend on local support.

Even if the seven counties in the Tocks region oppose the dam, the matter will probably be decided on the basis of the needs to be served by the project and possible alternate means of serving those needs.

A critical water shortage in northern New Jersey means the Delaware River will somehow have to supply more water for that area. Other purposes of the project include hydroelectric power and the national recreation area.

No alternatives

As of yet, there has been no alternatives determined which could adequately supply the critical needs. If those needs are not fulfilled, the results could be more disasterous than the environmental impact objections voiced against the dam project.

It has not been determined whether the project is the most beneficial and least distructive means of taking care of water and power needs.

It is not likely, however, the Tocks Island Dam project will be abandoned until better alternatives are suggested.

If the vote taken in Monroe today shows sentiment against the dam and in favor of the national recreation project, the Monroe County Commissioners may be taking on a long haul if they intend to be "guided by the will of the people."

Addresses ESSC audience

Hartke urges HHH support

Hartke said the students should consider Humphrey's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination because he "asks the right questions."

Noting the growing role of "student power" in the country, Hartke rattled off the list of issues supposedly of *the greatest import to stu*dent voters — the quality of public education, the operation of the draft and the pollution of resources.

Praising attempts by the young to make politics an in*strument of social change*, Hartke said, "It is not that I or Sen. Humphrey make any pretense to know all the right answers, but at least we know that the right questions are being asked."

"It is my firm belief that Sen. Humphrey is the one man in this race who did not have to become a candidate to know where he stood on the issues of this campaign."

Hartke said the probing honesty of the young is shattering the cherished beliefs of the past.

War issue

He cited the Vietnam War as an issue brought to light by the young in America. "It was the young who were compelled to serve in a war for which they had no commitment," Hartke said.

Humphrey best choice

He lauded Humphrey's announced program to end American involvment in that war within two months of assuming the Presidency.

Why hadn't Humphrey spoken out sooner against the war, one student asked. He wanted to know why Humphrey waited until he was not in the Johnson Administration before breaking away from the Johnson war policies.

Hartke fielded the question by claiming to have disagreed with Humphrey over his silence as vice-president on the Vietnam issue.

Hartke said Humphrey told him he could not oppose the war as vice-president. The Indiana Senator said he backed McCarthy in 1968, pointing to the fact he was one of the first Senators to break from the Johnson Administration on Vietnam back in 1965.

Hartke then tried to transfer his record on Vietnam to his support of Humphrey this time around. He told the students Humphrey was the only candidate in the field to have set forth a clear proposal for disengagement.

He listed Humphrey's liberal credits on the issue of civil rights. Hartke said he was with Humphrey in 1948 when the candidate pushed for civil rights and later when he fought the Senate filibuster to pass the civil rights legislation in the 1960's.

Record questioned

Again, the students questioned Humphrey's record. One student asked about Humphrey's position on the busing issue "in light of his honorable civil rights record."

"Busing does not make any contribution to quality education," Hartke retorted. He said the answer to quality education was better schools and better teachers.

Sparse applause followed that statement.

What about amnesty for those who left the country to avoid serving in the Vietnam War, another student asked.

Hartke said there would be no amnesty for the men who lost their lives or limbs serving in the war. He said those wishing to return to the country should be required to do compensatory service if *they left for reasons of con*scientious objection.

Busing not answer

Throughout the evening, Hartke shifted between his own positions on the issues and the positions held by Humphrey.

What was clear, is that Hartke is firmly behind Humphrey and firmly opposed to another term for President Nixon. He believes if Humphrey is nominated, he can beat Nixon easily.

MHMR officers reelected

By A.P. CESARE
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — The Tri-County Mental Health-Mental Retardation Board reelected its complete slate of officers for the 1972-73 year in a reorganizational meeting Monday night.

James Walker was reelected as board chairman and George Coutts renamed as vice chairman. All other officers were also retained. They are Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis, financial officer, and Mrs. Evelyn Heimbach, secretary.

The tri-county organization, composed of members from Pike, Monroe and Carbon, elected to become a part of the Health and Hospital Planning Council of *Northeast Pen*nsylvania.

The council is establishing a Health Management Corporation with membership from the three local counties, and also from Wayne, Lackawanna, Sullivan, Luzerne, and Wyoming Counties.

Thomas Foley, executive director of the Tri-County group, was selected to serve as area representative.

Foley presented an organizational chart and informed the members that MHMR must "develop a viable organization" if the tri-county unit is to accept total responsibility.

The proposed plan calls for the three boards of county commissioners to assume ad*ministrative responsibility of* the Mental Health Center located at the General Hospital of Monroe County.

The executive director urged the board members to study the chart and present suggestions at the next monthly meeting. The county commissioners, the hospital and the board would have to act on the organizational plans as proposed.

A "Student Intern Program, in cooperation with the Psychology Department of *East Stroudsburg State Col*lege, is planned to begin this summer. A student intern will act as coordinator and begin duties in May. Some 25 students from ESSC are being proposed for the program which carries credits and is considered on-the-job training. Twelve have already been selected and more will be considered in an orientation program planned for today at the college.

The students will be paid $1.75 an hour for summer employment of 10 weeks. During the school year, the hourly wage was set at $1.50 when the interns could be employed for 10 hours per week.

Foley termed the program across the state "successful". He said some 400 students are engaged in the programs from 65 different colleges and in conjunction with 129 agencies. Over 60 per cent of the college graduates, Foley said, follow through on the social-service type of careers.

30 take driving course

STROUDSBURG — Thirty of the area's senior set took the first half of a "Drive and Stay Alive" course Monday at the YMCA.

The students — all 65 or older — will take the second half of the course Thursday. Defensive driving techniques are taught by Fred and Dorothy Lee and Lester Link.

Why would a person who's been driving for most of his life take the course?

"That's easy," says Lee. "One of them just had an accident." A total of 37 people applied for the course and Lee hopes to offer another later this year.

The course is sponsored by the Pocono Area Chapter 633, American Associated of Retired Persons, in cooperation with the National Safety Council.

Drivers must be licensed to take the course. Course completion certificates will be issued to students attending the eight-hour sessions.

When Lee first took the course four years ago, he claims he found "things I was doing wrong for 40 years." The graduation certificates last for three years.

A total of 55,000 people were killed last year in accidents — a drop of 1,400 from 1969. Three million people have taken the defensive driving course.

"Maybe it helps," says Mrs. Lee, "but we can only reach 30."

One of the 30 is Stan Hartman. Like many enrolled, he was given a license before examinations were required.

"I'm all for it or I wouldn't be here," Hartman declares. "I've found things today I didn't even realize before."

The course's theme is: "Defensive driving is driving to prevent accidents in spite of the incorrect actions of others and adverse conditions."

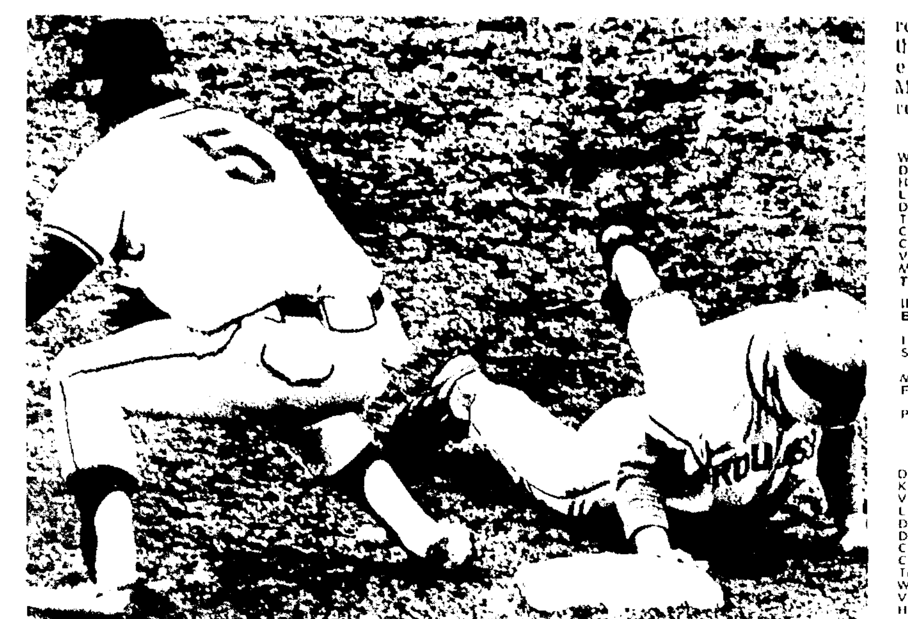
ESSC beats Ithaca twice, 3-1, 5-4; first series victories since 1965



Tom Bedics of East Stroudsburg State College slides safely back to first base Monday as Ithaca's Richard Kaplun takes attempted pickoff throw in third inning of second game.

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg State College broke a seven-year baseball losing streak against Ithaca College by jolting the Bombers twice Monday, 3-1 and 5-4 in nine innings.

The Warriors had not beaten Ithaca in baseball since 1965 when they registered a 14-13 win. The Bombers had taken 11 straight series victories including 15-2 and 6-1 decisions last year.

The sweep, which brought ESSC's record to 7-7-1, was especially satisfying to the team's seniors, who sat through a 22-3 shallacking at Ithaca two years ago.

Junior Tom Fetzer hurled a four-hitter and drove in two runs to highlight the opening game victory. Singles by pinch-hitter Dale Johnson and Tom Bedics and a squeeze play bunt by Dennis Acker scored the decisive runs in the second contest. Fetzer didn't allow Ithaca a hit after leadoff batter Mike Mazzei reached in the third inning. The lefthander from Hellertown retired 15 of the last 17 batters he faced, giving up two walks, and struck out nine.

The Bombers broke on top in the first inning as Jim Doherty singled, stole second base, took third on a passed ball and scored on Denny Leyden's single to centerfield.

ESSC tied the scored in the bottom of the second. Mark Hoffner was hit by one of Mazzei's pitches. Walks to Dave Wilson and Al Frick loaded the bases and a passed ball brought Hoffner home.

Consecutive singles by Joe Beckage, Charlie Sandora and Fetzer, following a walk to Frick, gave the Warriors their eventual winning run in the fourth frame.

An insurance run was added in the sixth.

Ironically, Fetzer had received credit for losses in the last two ESSC games, extra-inning defeats to Millersville and Kutztown. His record is now 2-2.

Western Wayne tops PCC; Buckhorns gain third win

LAKE ARIEL — Western Wayne scored a run in the third inning Monday to break a tie game and went on to beat Pocono Central Catholic, 4-2, in a Wayne County League baseball game.

In other action Wallenpaupack erupted for 11 hits—five of them for extra bases—as it kept the league lead with a 9-4 win over Honesdale and Forest City blanked Delaware Valley, 3-0.

Western Wayne jumped on loser Jim Wolbert for two runs in the first inning, but PCC, now 1-2, came back with a run in the second on singles by Joe Hardy and John Latzanich. The Kingsmen then tied the game in the top of the third when Tony Fluegel doubled, was sacrificed to third and stole home.

But the Lakers went ahead for good with a run in the bottom of the inning and added another in the fifth.

At Hawley, Ed Dalrymple and Mike Bartleson combined for a six-hitter for the 3-0 Buckhorns, defending league champion. The winner opened a 2-0 lead in the first inning on a single by Bartleson, Joe Granville's triple and Brad Bidwell's double.

After Honesdale scored in the second, Mike McGinnis drove in Dalrymple, who had walked and stole second for a 3-1 lead. The Buckhorns added two more in the third when Kevin Gilpin tripled with two men on. Steve Gillette's two-run triple highlighted a four-run fourth. Jim Nonnemacher hit a three-run homer for the loser in the sixth.

Forest City opened a 2-0 lead in the first inning on three singles and made it 3-0 in the second when John Sisco drove in his second run of the game with another single. The Warriors had men on third base in the fourth and sixth innings, but could not score.

Warriors register 96-49 track win

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg State College swept both hurdles events and the 880-yard run and went on to register a 96-49 track and field victory over William Paterson College Monday.

Dennis Morrissy stayed unbeaten by taking the 440-yard intermediate hurdles and Bob Garis won the 120-yard high hurdles. Glenn Renick and Jack Sabol tied for first in the 880.

Two track records were broken. Ed Long, although still not in top form following an injury, broke his own javelin record with a throw of 216-10. His old mark was 215-10 set last season.

Paterson's Tom Fleming took 41 seconds off the three-mile record with a time of 14:14.0. Jeff Bradley of Millersville had held the old record of 14:55.0 also set last year.

Barry's basket gives Nets win

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI)—Rick Barry hit a 15-foot bank shot with eight seconds remaining to give the New York Nets a 119-117 victory over Virginia Monday night and cut the Squires' lead to 2-1 in their American Basketball Association Eastern Division playoff finals.

The Nets were trailing 117-116 with 1:30 to go. Billy Paultz was then fouled and made the free throw to tie the game at 117-117 with a minute remaining.

The Squires then had four shots at the basket but missed each time before a long downcourt pass found Barry within range for the winning basket.

Barry and John Roche each scored 25 points for New York, Paultz had 23 and Bill Melchionni tallied 20 for the Nets.

Julius Erving of Virginia had a game-high 31, but the key to New York's victory was holding the talented rookie to only four points in the second half after he scored 27 before intermission.

Melchionni, playing his first game since breaking his hand before the playoffs, received the benefit of the long nine-day layoff between the second and third game.

Astros gain win with homer, 3-2

HOUSTON (UPI)—John Edwards hit a home run with one out in the 11th inning Monday night to give the Houston Astros a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Edwards hit a 2-2 pitch over the new short right field wall, only the fourth hit off loser Ferguson Jenkins, now 0-2. It was the Astros' seventh straight victory and moved them into a tie for first place with the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West.

The loss was the Cubs' sixth in a row.

Edwards' homer, his second of the season, was the first run of the game since the first inning. Ron Santo hit a two-run homer for the Cubs in the top of the first and Lee May tied it with a two run blast off Jenkins in the bottom of the inning.

Jenkins blanked the Astros on two hits from the second through the 10th and Ken Forsch shut out the Cubs on four hits from the second until he was lifted for a pinchhitter in the ninth. Jim Ray stopped the Cubs for two innings to pick up his second victory against no losses.

Adams, Overpeck set track marks

STROUDSBURG — Track records were the order of the day Monday at both Stroudsburg and Brodheadsville.

Mark Adams broke his own school record in the 400-yard dash and added a win in the triple jump, but Stroudsburg dropped a 75-43 decision to Catasauqua.

At Brodheadsville, Mitch Overpeck broke his own mark in the 220-yard dash and added two more wins to lead Pleasant Valley to a 91-31 victory over Western Wayne.

At Pen Argyl, the Green Knights managed just four first places as it lost its sixth meet in as many starts, 70-52 to Notre Dame of Green Pond.

Adams ran the 400 in 50.7, breaking the record he set last year by one-tenth of a second. He jumped 43-4 to win the triple jump.

Adams was the Mounties lone double winner. Marc Davis won the 100-yard dash in 11.0 for Stroudsburg's only other single winner. The one-mile relay team of Gary Olson, Steve Angle, Mick Romano and Adams won the event in 3:41.4.

Overpeck took the 220-yard dash in 23.4, breaking his old mark of 23.7. He also won the 100-yard dash in 10.6 and the high jump in 5-10. Mike Fahrenbach took two wins, throwing the javelin 137-4 and jumping 35-3 to win the triple jump.

Glen Bray won the two-mile run for Pen Argyl in 11:57.2, Mark Wimmer the discus with a toss of 132-2, Tom Edwards, javelin with a toss of 130-4½ and Woody Petchel the long jump with a leap of 18-8½.

Knicks, Lakers to match two types of successful styles

NEW YORK (UPI)--The NBA playoff finals become a reality Wednesday night in Los Angeles for the New York Knicks and the Lakers and the scene is being set for a head-on clash between two distinct basketball philosophies, both of which are proven successes.

The Knicks, with their orange clockwork precision, calculated risks on defense and patterned rotating offense, epitomize discipline. Their starting forwards --Dave DeBusschere and Bill Bradley--run deep circular routes on offense and are capable of accurate shooting at ranges of up to 25-30 feet.

Their starting guards--Walt Frazier and Earl Monroe--have good height and can drive or hit well at 15-20 feet. Their 6-foot 8 center, Jerry Lucas, while at a substantial disadvantage in scoring underneath, is capable of hitting shots from as far out as 30-35 feet and is thus able to draw the opposing center away from the boards.

Lucas has "court sense" and a disciplined mind that has been honed by experience. If he gets hot on offense he can virtually tease the opposition into changing its rhythm and nullify the opposing center's height advantage with outside shooting, occasional drives and passing.

The Lakers, on the other hand, represent the style which helped make the Boston Celtics of the Bill Russell-Red Auerbach era a legend and a standard. The tradition is still part of the old Celtic family since Laker coach Bill Sharman is one of Auerbach's disciples.

Los Angeles' offense begins on defense as they expect the rebounding of Wilt Chamberlain, Happy Hairston and Jim McMillian to start the fastbreak flying with shotgun passes downcourt.

If the fast break cannot be had, the Lakers revolve their system around the hub set by Chamberlain. Wilt the Stilt, the Big Dipper, the greatest scorer in NBA history, has been playing in the style developed by Bill Russell, once Chamberlain's greatest rival on the court.

Chamberlain no longer takes 30 shots per game. Rather, he usually takes fewer than 12. He concentrates more on screening for teammates, looking for a free man to pass off to and muscling for good position for rebounds. On defense Chamberlain is awesome. His arms reach over the rim (10 feet) and he can jump three or four feet from a standstill.

Jerry West, his scoring restrained recently by his value as a passer, is among the best defensive guards in the league. Both he and Chamberlain were voted to the NBA's 1972 all-defensive team. Ironically, two Knicks--Frazier and DeBusschere--were also named to the all-defensive team. Thus one may predict a battle of defensive abilities which would result in low scores.

But one can also expect quite a different result. Both teams move the ball well and both have shooters who are deadly from the outside. Every starting Knick is capable of a 30-point game just as every Laker is.

While the Knicks generally balance their scoring, the Lakers' fire-power comes mainly from the guards AA Gail Goodrich and West. If the Lakers can get 40-50 points from McMillian and Hairston, the Knicks will be pressed hard, since coach Red Holtzman's defense depends to a large degree on the abilities of the forwards to hold their men down. Sharman may also have Chamberlain look to the basket more to utilize his 6-inch height advantage and 50-pound weight advantage over Lucas.

Both teams are equally healthy, though Dick Barnett of the Knicks is still bothered somewhat by his strained back. The Lakers are a 2-1 betting favorite to win the series on the basis of their home court advantage, their incredible performance this season—they won a record 69 games out of 82—and their possible advantage at center.

The Knicks are an experienced team with poise and one NBA championship already notched. The Lakers are hungry for their first championship. West has had a brilliant individual career and the Lakers during that period have been one of the most consistently successful teams in the league. They have been in final playoffs since 1961 but have lost each one. They lost to the Knicks two years ago. This will be West's eighth shot at the top prize.

Strategies will no doubt be evaluated, challenged and counter-challenged throughout the series. Luck and debatable calls by the referees should balance themselves out and as any coach with even the slightest amount of diplomacy will announce, anything can happen in a best-of-seven series.

The effectiveness of the benches of both teams will be critical to the outcome. The desire of all the players is at a peak, perhaps more for the distinction and achievement of winning than for money— approximately $15,000 each of the Lakers if they win, approximately $12,000 for each of the Knicks if they win.

The key to the series will be the degree to which one of the teams forces the other to change its style. New York will be looking to slow the tempo, force the Lakers into mistakes and capitalize on those mistakes. Los Angeles will be looking to wheel and deal and get the ball in the air before the Knicks can set up. Two different basketball philosophies and two superb teams should make this a very interesting series.

Lakers given opening edge in final of NBA playoffs

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI)—Oddsmakers give the Los Angeles Lakers a solid first night edge Wednesday when they meet the New York Knicks for the start of the National Basketball Association championship.

The Knicks nicked the Lakers out of a championship in 1970 but the betting world, acknowledging the Lakers marvelous home court performances, give them the series by 2-1.

New York, playing the blazing kind of game that won them the championship in recent years, swept into the finals Sunday by defeating the Boston Celtics in five games.

Undeniably, the Knicks have settled into a victory rhythm and their streak frankly worries Laker coach Bill Sharman, who ponders whether his players will suffer a "physical and emotional letdown" after their own tough series against Milwaukee.

"But we just can't have any letdown," says Sharman. "If we do, we're in trouble."

The Lakers defeated defending NBA champion Milwaukee Saturday for the Western Conference title.

Sharman reminds newsmen that New York is a great "outside shooting club" and that their ball handling is "almost as well" as when they kidnaped the championship in 1970.

"We're going to have to do a lot of switching to get to the outside shooters. We will have to contest their shots," he says.

"Of course, I have a few ideas, but I don't want to tell anybody but our players."

Sharman concedes he may employe 6-foot-11 Leroy Ellis, a seldom-used reserve, along with 7-1 Wilt Chamberlain to try to nullify the Knicks long-shooting Jerry Lucas.

The Lakers, who will be making their eighth appearance in the NBA finals in 12 years have the home-court edge in the series and Sharman is resolute that he won't allow New York to repeat history—stealing the championship in 1970 in the seventh and last game.

MONTICELLO, N.Y. — At 78, Earle Avery has finally decided to slow down. Not the way most 78 year olds slow down, mind you. Earle just plans to train a few less horses this year. Come May 4, opening night at Monticello, "only" 11 standardbreds will bear the brand of the Clearview Stable.

The remarkable septuagenarian was born in Knowlesville, New Brunswick, in 1894 and has been a trainer-driver since the early years of the 20th century. The son of a well to do farmer lumberman, Avery drove in match races over the main streets of Knowlesville long before a track even existed in the area. His first track win was a 2:17 mile with trotter Black Peter in 1919. Most of the drivers competing with Earle at the upcoming Monticello meet weren't even born in 1919.

For the next 33 years Avery successfully combined a professional driving career with large scale potato farming on his 600 acre Woodstock, N.B., farm. Harness racing, however, was his "first love, and at a time when most men consider retiring to the farm, Earle retired from the farm to full-time harness racing.

In 1955 he left the ranks of the public stable operators and joined Norman Woolworth's highly successful Clearview Farm as head trainer-driver. The combination has produced world records, 2:00 miles and $100,000 purses with such outstanding stock as Meadow Skipper, Porterhouse, Egyptian Princess, Sh Boom, Muncy Hanover, Bright Knight, Pay Dirt and Gun Runner. Avery holds special affection for Meadow Skipper. The great pacer defeated Overtrick and Country Don in the 1963 Cane Pace and also took Earle for the fastest of his 21 two minute miles — a 1:57.4 jaunt.

Last summer at Monticello, Earle developed another gem, Scarpia, in the track's juvenile pacing program. With Avery driving, the Henry T. Adios colt took a 2:03.1 mark at the Mighty "M", then scored in 1:58.4 in a time trial at Lexington that fall. Now being handled by Stanley Dancer in New York, Scarpia is already a multiple winner in three year old early closers.

Avery's 11 head this season consists of two and three year olds exclusively. The record shows that the veteran gets along famously with the youngsters. Who knows, harness racing's next superstar may soon be standing in a Monticello stall.

Golfing first

By CHUCK FIERSON
Record Sports Editor

"Obie" Radford may have registered a first at Glen Brook Golf Club. Radford, a Stroudsburg automobile salesman, registered a hole-in-one. This in itself is something special. But Radford is a left handed golfer. Veterans believe it was the first ace by a southpaw at the club. . . .

More interesting developments concerning replacing Tony Romano as Stroudsburg High School basketball coach. School officials say they have 14 applicants. Although they won't admit it, informed sources say one is Chick Daniels, former East Stroudsburg High School coach.

Daniels, who led Tamaqua to its best season ever last year, has indicated he won't return to the Anthracite League school next season. Daniels and his brother, Bob, still run Top-Of-the-Poconos sports camp in Candensis. . . .

As soon as the championship-type racing cars leave Pocono International Raceway, the track will get ready for its marathon rock concert July 8. Although officials haven't announced it yet, three top-flight groups have been committed to play — the Rolling Stones, the Carpenters and Three Dog Night. . . .

The third annual Raider Memorial Football Clinic will be conducted May 5 and May 6 at ESSC. The clinic, sponsored by the Raider Alumni Club, an organization of former ESSC players, honors the memory of Gary Rumberger, a former football player and coach who died a few years ago. Climaxing the clinic will be the annual spring football game. . . .

Lombardo named best wrestler at Stroudsburg

STROUDSBURG — Bob Lombardo, the runner-up in the Lehigh Valley League, was named Stroudsburg High School's most valuable wrestler at a dinner honoring the team Sunday.

The dinner was sponsored by Emanuel Vito.

Lombardo was beaten in the final of the 133-pound class. Bob Hartman, who won the 120-pound class, was also given a trophy.

Others honored were Bill Brown (most team points), Rich Mosier (most improved wrestler), and Craig Schaller and Bruce Davis (captains).

Other seniors who were honored included Jerry Smith and Bill Leap. Sheldon Morgan, who recently resigned as head coach, was presented a gift by team members.

JUST 9 MORE DAYS TO GO

Shooting for Ruth's home run mark

Aaron may be strike's biggest loser

ATLANTA (UPI)--Hank Aaron could be the player who winds up losing the most on account of the baseball strike.

Not in money alone, although, as baseball's highest-paid performer ($200,000 a year), his salary cut was bigger than anyone else's.

Far more damaging than the loss of immediate money could be the effect the delay has on Aaron's long-range goal--hitting more home runs than Babe Ruth.

"My timing is off," Aaron moaned after getting only one hit, a single, in his first 22 at bats. And even when he appeared to break out of his slump this weekend with a 4-for-9 showing that included two homers, Aaron still wasn't sure.

"Ask me at the end of the year, then I'll let you know," Aaron snapped uncharacteristically when asked if he thought he was finding himself.

Hank Aaron has no intention of deceiving himself. He knows those two home runs he hit (one Saturday night and the other Sunday afternoon) were not typical Aaron homers.

The Aaron trademark is a line shot to left field. But both of Aaron's homers were arcs that would have been routine fly balls if Hank hadn't managed to pull them down the left field line.

"I wasn't happy about our long layoff but there was nothing I could do about that and, anyway, that's past," said the 38 year-old Atlanta Braves' superstar.

"The thing is, it seems to have affected my timing. I'm not hitting the ball the way I usually do. It's something I've just got to work out of."

Harris finally got Aaron to agree to sit out Friday night's game and the rest seemed to help. Hank, who is still hitting only .161, was 2-for-4 Saturday night and 2-for-5 on Sunday.

"As far as I am concerned, I haven't come out of my slump yet," said Aaron. "I'm still not hitting the ball like I should."

Aaron, who had talked about retiring at the end of next season, has given himself through the 1974 season to catch Babe Ruth. His two weekend homers were the 640th and 641st of his career and he is now 73 behind Ruth.

A more immediate goal is second place on the all-time home run list. Willie Mays started the season with 646, seven more than Hank, but the fading 41-year-old Giants outfielder hasn't hit his first of 1972 yet.

Despite his slow start, Aaron is expected to move up to second place this year in runs batted in and extra base hits. Although he has only four rbi's so far, Aaron trails Lou Gehrig by only 27 and he needs only 58 more extra base hits to catch Ruth in that department.

"Right now, I'm more concerned about getting my timing back and hitting the way I know I can," said Aaron who has a .313 lifetime mark for 18 major league seasons and hit .327, with 47 home runs last year.

"Once that's accomplished, the other things will take care of themselves."

Hank Aaron sharpens batting eye.

St. Louis seeks help at goalie

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—If you have ever had the ambition to play goal in a Stanley Cup game, the St. Louis Blues may want you to play for them tonight against the Boston Bruins.

The Bruins have demolished three St. Louis goalies in the first three games of the semi-final series and outscored the Blues, 23-5, over the three games. The Bruins would like to end the Blues' agony at the St. Louis Arena by sweeping the series.

The Blues started the series with their two regular goalies, Jacques Caron and Ernie Wakely, and the Bruins battered both of them into heavy losses in Boston. The Blues decided to gamble in Sunday's third game in St. Louis, and 24-year-old Peter McDuffe was called from the farm team at Denver.

"I couldn't believe it," McDuffe said. "We had just finished winning our playoff series in four straight games against San Diego and I was resting until the finals. Then I got this telephone call to report to the Blues and was told that I'd probably start."

McDuffe caught a plane from Denver Saturday evening, and the plane was delayed because of a cracked windshield. He got to Kansas City, and his second plane was delayed because of hydraulic trouble. After two hours' sleep and a breakfast that he couldn't digest McDuffe was sent on to the ice to try to stop the marauding Bruins.

Boston goalie Eddie Johnston, watching and sympathizing with fellow goalie McDuffe from the other end of the rink, said, "It was like throwing the poor guy into the frying pan."

St. Louis coach Al Arbour hasn't yet revealed who will be in goal for the fourth game.

The Bruins at this point don't really care who the Blues' goalie will be. They know now that their opponent in the finals will be the New York Rangers and they would like to start shooting against the Rangers instead of continuing the onslaught against the Blues.

Ryun enters Drake race

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI)--Jim Ryun became the sixth world record-holder to enter the 63rd annual Drake Relays Monday.

Ryun, eager to build on the success he had last week at the Kansas Relays, entered Saturday's invitational mile run. Ryun, who owns the world records in the mile, 1,500 meters and 880-yard run, ran 3:57.1 last Saturday to beat Tom Von Ruden's 3:57.9.

Ryun's mile was the first he had run competively since the 4:19.6 at Los Angeles March 4. Von Ruden ran 3:56.9 in that one.

Some houseboat

Veteran house mover E.B. 'Tex' Gamblin decided on the old barge route when faced with problem of moving 50-foot high, 130-ton frame house from Charles County to Montgomery County, Md., which explains rare sight of home floating serenely down Patuxent River. House arrived at destination safely.

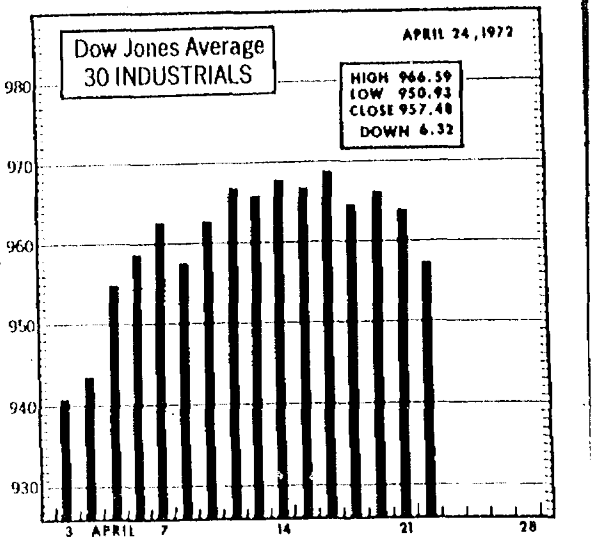
Vietnam news bothers

Market in sharp dip



NEW YORK (UPI) —Stocks retreated across the board Monday in reduced activity as investors sat on the sidelines showing concern over mutual fund redemptions, the Price Commission and the Vietnam War.

The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 selected bluechip stocks fell 6.32 to 957.48. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dropped 0.70 to 108.19. And the average price of a New York Stock Exchange common share declined by 29 cents.

Volume dwindled to 14,650,000 shares from the 18,200,000 traded Friday. Declines far outnumbered advances, 1,000 to 455, among 1,761 issues crossing the tape.

Many analysts, including Lucien O. Hooper of W. E. Hutton & Co., attributed the setback in part to Friday's report March mutual fund redemptions set a record. Also, the "market is in a level of congestion in the averages which has been the case for the past six years," Hooper said.

The Price Commission is demanding refunds from some large corporations it said have made "excessive" profits, and Harry Laubscher, analyst for Walston & Co., said he thought this may "have had some psychological effect."

Laubscher said he believed the market was at a level where an adjustment is needed. "This will be good for the market in the long run," he said. "The market is overvalued and over-bought."

Additionally, there was growing concern over Vietnam where the Communists attacked within 38 miles of Saigon.

Republic Corp. was the most active issue, off ¼ at 9⅛ on 279,900 shares. The issue has been strong recently in light of reports the conglomerate is on its way to recovery following two disastrous fiscal years.

ESB Inc. was second, up ½ at 36⅛ on 259,600 shares, including a block of 180,000 shares at 35¾, up ⅛. Public Service Electric & Gas was third, off ⅛ at 24 on 161,500 shares, including a block of 112,300 shares at 24.

There were a few bright spots on the otherwise dismal day. Bausch & Lomb was one of them, climbing 6 points after reporting higher first quarter earnings.

Another was Alaska Interstate, up 2¼. The company last week reported higher earnings in the first quarter.

On the other hand, Getty Oil and Superior Oil each fell 6. Getty reported sharply lower first quarter earnings. Jersey Standard dropped ⅝ after reporting lower earnings.

Network television issues continued weak because of the Justice Department's suit charging them with monopolizing prime time programming. CBS fell 1⅞, ABC ½ and RCA, parent company of NBC, ¼.

Avon Products surrendered 3¼. Barron's, a weekly financial magazine, said the company may have trouble sustaining its recent earnings pace.

Rails headed lower. Norfolk & Western, despite a higher first quarter earnings report, dropped 1⅝ and Southern Pacific ⅝. Analysts noted the Interstate Commerce Commission suspended proposed 4.5 per cent freight rate increases at the request of the Price Commission.

Airlines and aircrafts also headed lower. Northwest Orient lost 1⅜ and National 1¼. McDonnell Douglas lost a point despite higher first quarter earnings. Boeing slipped ⅞.

Steels and motors were lower. Ford (ex-dividend) lost 1⅞ and Chrysler 1⅛. The Price Commission denied Ford's request to raise prices n engine components, vinyl goods and glass.

Chemicals were mixed. Dow advanced 1⅝ and Allied ¾. Both have reported higher quarterly earnings.

Prices were lower in light trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex index fell 0.10 to 28.20. Turnover amounted to 3,880,000 shares, down from the 5,180,000 traded Friday.

Business loan project aids struggling entrepreneurs

By PAMELA G. HOLLIE
Dow Jones-Ottaway News

Early last year, Keith Roberts scraped together a few thousand dollars and bought out a small Mt. Vernon, N.Y., taxi fleet. At the time, the transaction seemed to be the happy culmination of Roberts' *lifelong ambition: to be an in*dependent businessman.

Times changed quickly. Only a few months after the 54-year-old black man bought the fleet, the taxis began to fall apart one by one.

By September, Roberts was rattling around town in his last dilapidated hack. What's more, he still owed $8,700 to the fleet's former owner, and attempts to raise additional capital had been rebuffed by banks and friends alike.

"I didn't know what to do or where to go," Roberts recalls.

At the suggestion of an acquaintance, Keith Roberts turned to what then seemed like an unlikely source of help: General Foods Corp. in nearby White Plains. And much to Roberts' surprise, General Foods was obliging.

The gaint food processor and packager arranged a loan of almost $29,000 for the Mt. Vernon taxi-fleet owner and also helped rush through an order for five new taxis and an airport limousine in time for the busy Christmas season.

"I just needed some help to get out of the hole," Roberts says, adding that his business has been booming ever since the loan went through.

Roberts' good fortune was made possible by a two-year-old program fostered by the Small Business Administration for the purpose of aiding businesses owned by members of minority groups.

Under the program, some of the nation's leading corporations, as well as smaller firms and groups of individuals, have formed "Minority Enterprise Small Business Investment Companies," familiarly known as MESBICS. It's expected that each MESBIC will ultimately be able to generate a minimum of $2 million in loans and investments.

Thus far, 49 MESBICS have provided financial assistance - loans or investments - for more than 400 minority-owned companies, most of which would have otherwise foundered.

"We'll take risks no other lender would dare take," says George Glass, president of North Street Capital Corp., the MESBIC set up by General Foods. And it's estimated by program officials that more than 3,000 jobs have been created in MESBIC-assisted firms.

MESBICS, to be sure, are far from the sole source of funding for minority enterprises. Scores of private and public programs, such as the Interracial Council for Business Opportunities and the Presbyterian Economic Development Corp., provide loans to minority group businessmen.

What's more, the MESBIC program has its share of critics, some of whom say the plan suffers from bureaucracy and others of whom charge that MESBIC interest rates, which range up to 15 per cent are too high.

To add powder to critic's guns the nation's first MESBIC, Arcata Investment Co., will fold this month after sustaining losses of $500,000.

Sponsored by Arcata National Corp., a California-based information industry concern, Arcata Investment had served as the prototype for the entire MESBIC program. Since 1968, Arcata had provided capital for 47 minority-owned businesses. To date 22 have failed.

The Arcata MESBIC, capitalized at $300,000, was supported yearly by the parent company's commitment of two per cent of after-tax profits and SBA loans of $600,000.

Yet by 1970, the MESBIC had lost enough of its own money, SBA funds and bank loans to cause the SBA to suspend its license. The Arcata MESBIC managers said the MESBIC's failure was due to "poor decision making."

Incumbents still favorites in state House primary races

By United Press International

Primary races for state House seats are holding to the traditional pattern in 1972—incumbents are the odds-on favorites nearly everywhere.

The legislature tackled a number of touchy issues during this session, enough to give challengers plenty of ammunition for fighting the incumbents.

A new 2.3 per cent personal income tax, Sunday liquor sales, angry fights over divorce reform and abortion—the issues touched the lives of every Pennsylvania citizen.

The legislators, particularly the Democrats who engineered passage of the new tax, were prepared to pay for that decision through stiff election opposition.

Few serious contest

But only 78 of the 181 incumbents seeking reelection have any opposition, and only a handful of those races are considered serious contests.

Twelve legislators, eight Republicans and four Democrats, have no opposition for either the primary or the general election. Among those incumbents is House Republican Leader Kenneth B. Lee, of Sullivan, Susquehanna and Wyoming counties.

Two Democrats, Rep. Donald M. Davis, of Uniontown, and Ben L. Parker, of Jefferson, are knocking heads in the 50th District in Fayette and Greene counties.

Parker, 59, a former high school principal, is given the edge over Davis, 57. Parker has served two years to Davis' four, but most of the new district is included in Parker's present district.

Parker now represents all of Greene county and a small portion of Washington County. Davis's district is entirely in Fayette County.

The district which they are running in includes all of Greene County and only a small piece of Fayette County.

In Pittsburgh, the most controversial race is between Rep. Erroll B. Davis and Joseph Rhodes Jr., a member of the President's Commission on Campus Unrest.

The two black men are competing to represent East Liberty and Homewood, two low-income neighborhoods in the northeast corner of the city which have been marked by racial tensions.

Davis, a cigar-puffing former newspaperman, is trying for his second term in the legislature. He is a strong backer of the Democratic leadership and usually votes along party lines.

But he was among a group of black legislators who withheld their votes on an important school subsidy bill last fall because they said blacks were not being given high positions at Penn State University or on the State Police.

Rhodes, 24, graduated from Pittsburgh's predominatly black Westinghouse High School and held a fellowship at Harvard University. He made national headlines in the fall of 1970 when he commented on the killing of four students at Kent State University in Ohio.

Rhodes, the youngest member of the so-called Scranton commission said the use of "deadly force" by the National Guard was "completely unjustified."

He originally wanted to run for the Pittsburgh City Council but later changed his mind.

Organized labor, perhaps the strongest political force in the state, has entered several of the primary contests, sometimes abandoning challengers from its own ranks to support pro-labor incumbents.

Labor stepped in to support Rep. Paul Lutty, D - Allegheny, when the Democratic party refused to endorse him. Lutty, seeking 12th two-year term in the House, received the endorsement of the Allegheny County Labor Council.

He is in a four way race with James A. Romanelli, an inspector; Steve Seventy, an insurance agent, and Ambrose D. Klein, the owner of a hotel.

The Democrats in Lackawanna County abandoned their incumbent, Rep. Joseph Wargo, a member of the House since 1949 and caucus secretary for the past six years.

Wargo, known for his independent spirit, was dropped reportedly because county party leaders wanted a younger man and a "new face." But his replacement on the endorsed ticket, Paul Ruddy, 45, is only four years younger than Wargo.

The Central Labor Council in Scranton and a teacher's union are working for Wargo's reelection, giving him the edge in the primary race.

In the Bucks County race between Democratic Rep. Milton Berkes and Frank Dzurinko, the president of a large steelworker's local, the AFL-CIO is backing Berkes because of his pro-labor voting record.

Berkes is favored, even though Dzurinko has strong support from workers at U.S. Steel plants in the area.

A second Democratic incumbent, Rep. Regis Malady is competing with a steelworker's union local president, Daniel W. Hannan. Hannan is running a vigorous anti-tax campaign in the Allegheny County district, but organized labor has endorsed Malady, an electronics engineer.

In the state's most populous county, Philadelphia, there are only two serious primary fights out of the 35 House races.

In 16 of the districts, there are no primary races in either party, and in two others the winner of the Democratic primary will be the only candidate in the general election.

The two incumbents facing strong challengers are Democratic Reps. Roland Greenfield and Francis Rush, both trying for third terms.

Opponent is teacher

Greenfield's opponent is a 35-year-old teacher, Stanley G. Field. Field, an alumnus of seven universities, claims to be the first Peace Corps volunteer from Philadelphia. He served with the corps in Nigeria from 1961-63.

Rush, a realtor from the Germantown area, faces two strong candidates in Gloria Llorente, who is president of a steelworker's local, and David P. Richardson, 24, the executive director of the Greater Germantown Youth Corps.

Mrs. Llorente, the mother of two children, lost in her bid for the City Council in 1970. She and Richardson are both black, a factor in the race since Germantown's black population has been increasing rapidly.

Twenty two incumbents across the state did not seek another term, 11 from each party. Reps. Michael O'Pake, D-Berks, Franklin Kury, D-Northumberland, William Coyne, D-Allegheny, and William J. Moore, R-Perry, are running for Senate seats.

Rep. Gerald Kaufman, D-Allegheny, is Sen. George McGovern's Pennsylvania campaign manager and stepped down to seek a delegate seat at the Democratic National Convention.

Among those who retired are three veterans of legislative service.

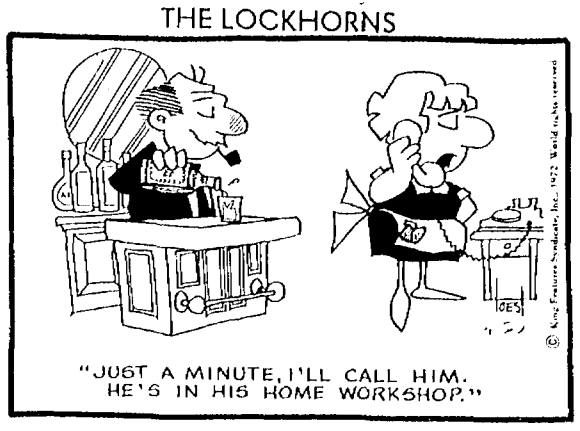
Veteran House member

Rep. Robert Hamilton, D-Philadelphia, first came to the Capitol in 1941 and served every term after that except during the height of World War II. He was Speaker in the 1965-66 term.

Rep. Sarah Anderson, a petite grandmother from Philadelphia, has been a member of the House since 1955. She tried to retire in 1970 but was drafted into running again. Mrs. Anderson, a lifelong civil rights worker, fought to establish a treatment program for victims of sickle cell anemia, a disease which afflicts Negroes.

Rep. Michael J. Needham, D-Lackawanna, 62, served his first term in 1947. The chairman of the Mines and Minerals Committee will return to his home in Scranton.

THE LOCKHORNS



Government nixes Tocks alternative

WASHINGTON — A proposed "high-flow skimming" alternative to the Tocks Island Dam has been viewed negatively by the U.S. Department of the Interior in a geological survey report.

The proposal was made in the form of a paper entitled "Water Supply and the Tocks Island Dam" by Freemen, Mills and Kinsman to U.S. Senator Clifford Case.

The paper offers a solution to the water supply function of the Tocks Island Dam as it relates to water for northern New Jersey, Philadelphia-Camden area and the Delaware River estuary.

According to the geological survey, the proposal does not include important considerations such as flood control, hydroelectric power and recreation.

"Thus it seems hardly intended to offer any alternative, as such, to the multiple purpose Tocks Island project," the report states.

Perhaps the greatest obstacle for the water diversion alternative to the Tocks project is a 1954 Supreme Court decree limiting diversions by New Jersey from the Delaware River watershed, according to the report.

Woman injured

HICKORY RUN — A 35-year-old White Haven woman was injured Thursday when her car collided with a truck on Interstate Route 80 near here.

The injured woman was identified by state police at Mount Pocono as Rita Joan Sisson. She was listed in "fair" condition Thursday in Gnadden Hueten Hospital in Lehighton.

According to police the Sisson woman was traveling east in her car and after passing an eastbound rig lost control of the vehicle and collided with a truck operated by Danny D. Fannin, 23 of Moorehead, Kan.

Total damages to the two vehicles were estimated at $11,000.

Dr. Shoban to speak at college

EAST STROUDSBURG — Dr. Edward J. Shoban, executive vice president of Evergreen State College, will speak at 3 p.m., Tuesday in room 113 of Stroud Hall on the East Stroudsburg State College campus.

His talk, entitled "They Know Enough," will concern some of Shoban's views on the adequacy of undergraduate education, especially liberal arts, and some recommendation that will lead toward increasing the contemporaneity of undergraduate education.

His visit is being sponsored by the psychology department of the college.

Prior to his present position, Shoban, who has published several books and many research articles and essays, received the Doctor of Philosophy degree in 1947 from the University of Southern California.

After several years of teaching and counseling at USC, he moved to Iowa where he filled positions of professor, director of clinical training and director of college relations.

From 1968 to 1969 he served as editor of the "Educational Record," and as a member of the American Council of Education, professor of psychology of education, and director of the Center for Higher Education.

He also served as chairman of the Council on Higher Education at the State University of New York at Buffalo.

Bus companies seek rate hike

HARRISBURG — Frank Martz Coach, of Wilkes-Barre, is among 15 bus companies which have asked the Public Utilities Commission to approve a five per cent rate hike for intercity rides effective May 15.

The transit firms said more revenue is needed to meet higher costs. Similar requests have been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission for long distance, between state trips.

TAURUS

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You can find new roads to achievement, bettered conditions — IF alert. Cut red tape, get to the nucleus of a project and heed intuition to a justifiable extent.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Don't permit bright ideas to wither before they have been tried out. Try to dovetail some unique endeavor into your regular program.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Generous influences, but don't rush heedlessly into orbit. Only with steady, serene action can you build the solid foundation from which to launch wiser future moves.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — There may be more than one way to achieve your goal, so keep eyes and ears open. Generally speaking, the strong and decisive try will pay off.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Mixed influences. Your efforts may not show immediate returns. They will however, strengthen your current position. Stress accuracy, precision.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Don't anticipate problems. Study, think, act in careful manner. Mixed influences prevail, so be mindful. Avoid gossip and rumormongers.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Plan carefully, then proceed with firmness. Keep all things in proper perspective, order, maintaining a systematic schedule.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Your talents will be called upon a-plenty now. In fact, you may be busily active both day and night. But don't fret. You will be rewarded — and generously.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Give everyone and everything careful appraisal. Listen attentively, but don't be swayed against your better judgment by some "smooth" talker.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Some sagging in determination and resolve likely. So begin by setting a brisk enough pace, assuring yourself of proper procedures and direction. Avoid dissension.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Be sure with whom you make agreements, plans, contracts. All situations may not please, but keep trying. Those showing least promise may turn out better than you expect.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Some optional choices for you now. Weigh each thoughtfully, carefully evaluate potentials and then embrace the most promising.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a fine intellect, remarkable powers of intuition and outstanding creativity. You are inventive and could go far in technical fields; could also excel at engineering, chemistry or architecture. You have a great love of beauty, are imaginative and idealistic, almost to a fault. An unusual number of Taureans often take up art as an avocation and wind up making it a vocation, though they are quite capable of carrying on two careers simultaneously. Traits to curb: Obstinacy and a tendency toward being dictatorial. Birthdate of: Edward R. Morrow, news commentator; Ella Fitzgerald, singer; Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of wireless telegraphy.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. 4-25

"In Memoriam"

Honor the memory of your departed loved ones this Memorial Day. On Saturday, May 27th, The Pocono Record will publish its annual "In Memoriam" feature section . . . dedicated to the memory of those who have passed on. All names will be listed in alphabetical order and each veteran's name will be preceded by a star. You can revere the memory of your loved ones in this dignified manner effectively and economically.

Sample $2.00 Listings:
(Up to 12 lines)

JONES
In loving memory of [illegible] Beloved husband of [illegible] Company A, 2nd Battalion, 2nd Marines, killed in action February 19, 1944, during the Battle of Iwo Jima
Dr. and Mrs. John Jones

MEYERS
In loving memory of my beloved wife, Mary Meyers, who passed away July 2, 1947
Tenderly we miss her smile
Her laugh, her jest
But most of all we miss her love
Her kind and loving heart
Sadly missed by husband, family and friend
And the sweetness of her memory
Time can neither dim nor end
Nathaniel Meyers

OVER 65 ONLY: ENROLLMENT PERIOD ENDS MIDNIGHT THURSDAY, APRIL 27, 1972

Now, for just $1 for your first month's protection, you can examine 'on approval' this sensible, affordable Plan! New Elder-Care® pays you Tax-Free Cash—lifetime maximum benefits of $50,000.00! After the initial deductible, this Plan covers major hospital expenses that Hospital Medicare leaves out!

■ only $3 a month after the first month!
■ no age limit ■ guaranteed renewable
■ all pre-existing conditions are covered!

Your first month is only $1. And you get your dollar back if you're not completely satisfied.

ARE YOUR PARENTS OVER 65?
Tell them about this plan or . . . Give it to them.

Right now you have an opportunity to help protect your parents against today's skyrocketing hospital bills. A long illness — the kind they're prone to — can easily exhaust their savings.

That's why we urge you to bring this plan to their attention immediately — before the expiration date — and help them get $50,000.00 worth of lifetime maximum benefits — all tax free.

Better still, you may use the Application Form below to give it to them. To do so, just complete the form using your address. We will send the Policy and payment notices to you. Just $1 will cover either one or both of your parents for the first month.

MEDICARE IS GREAT—BUT!. . .

Wake up friends. Blessing that it is, please realize that Medicare isn't everything many folks suppose. It has deductibles, percentages and charges that you must pay out of your own pocket. And recent changes have increased those costs. You pay more! What a shock to find this out too late. Today, even with Hospital Medicare, a long seige of illness in the hospital could leave you with crippling financial debts.

DON'T LEARN THE FACTS THE HARD WAY!

After you're laid up, it's a little late. Under Medicare today you pay the initial deductible for each 'benefit period'. That's the first $68 of hospital expenses. Then from the 61st day of the period you must pay $17-a-day. After 90 days this increases to $34-a-day — $238-a-week, $1,020 -a-month—that you must pay. Plus you start dipping into your Medicare 60-day 'Lifetime Reserve'. And after your Lifetime Reserve is used up, Medicare won't pay you a cent for the rest of that period. Think what a long spell of illness could mean—the slow kind that older folks get more than anyone else! You could be stuck with unpaid bills that could wipe out retirement savings . . . and plunge you deep into debt!

THIS PLAN IS A MUST FOR ANYONE OVER 65

If you feel Medicare charges are confusing, you're right they are! Worse—they're expensive! 'Part A' of Medicare is Hospital Insurance, designed primarily for in-hospital costs. 'Part B' is Medical Insurance, for doctors and medical service bills. This Plan protects you for every eligible Hospital Medicare expense that Hospital Medicare doesn't pay. After your initial deductible, you're covered for all major Hospital Medicare hospital charges — with no time limit—no matter how much or how often you collect—until you receive $50,000.00 worth of total lifetime protection! And no matter how Medicare costs increase in the future, you needn't worry. This Plan fills in automatically! We believe there's no finer Plan in America today!

YOUR MEDICARE COSTS KEEP INCREASING

The law requires that Medicare costs must be reviewed each year and if hospital charges change significantly, the money that patients contribute must be adjusted the following year. Well, it's no secret; it's already happened twice — in '70 and again in '71. In fact, hospital costs have TRIPLED in the past few years. And are still increasing! There's little doubt about it. You'll wind up paying even more. That's why our Elder-Care Hospital Plan makes so much sense!

EVERY ADDITIONAL COST IS ANOTHER PROBLEM FOR YOU:

The Social Security Administration estimates that Medicare will pay less than half of your total health cost! That's why this Elder-Care Plan is so vital. It assures you virtually complete hospital coverage no matter how much Hospital Medicare pays (or doesn't pay) in the future. It assures you will never be saddled (or saddle anyone else) with bankrupting hospital bills. It's like having money set aside against a rainy day!

HERE'S WHAT'S COVERED — AND NOT COVERED

There are no tricky "catches" or "waiting periods". All pre-existing conditions (physical illness you've had or have right now) are covered in any recognized hospital, from the moment your policy is in force. Here are the only exceptions: Federal or State Government facilities, mental institutions, sanitariums for alcoholics or drug addicts, and geriatric extended-care facilities like nursing or rest homes. Loss paid by Workmen's Compensation or Occupational Disease Laws is not covered. Your plan cannot be cancelled as long as you pay your premiums, and the $3. rate cannot be raised, unless a general rate adjustment — up or down — applies to everyone in your state.

SEND $1 FOR YOUR FIRST MONTH'S PROTECTION . . .

while you examine your Elder-Care Plan. It's yours with a money-back guarantee. Examine it carefully in the privacy of your own home. There's no "fine print". Show it to any trusted advisor. Indeed, show it to your doctor. He knows about the limitations of Hospital Medicare. He'll tell you how valuable this Plan really is. Even then, if you're not completely satisfied, return the policy within 30 days and we'll promptly refund your money — no ifs, ands or buts! It makes sense to protect yourself now for this amount — while you make up your mind! If you decide to continue, your regular monthly premium is only $3 per person. A small premium for so much peace of mind!

APPLY AT ONCE—NOW IS THE TIME!

Everyone over 65 is automatically qualified during this limited program. The closing date, however, is definite! We cannot accept applications after the postmark deadline. So please don't hesitate. You are protected by an iron-clad 30-day money back guarantee. Mail your application form, with only $1 before the midnight deadline. Act now, while the thought is uppermost in your mind!

8 IMPORTANT QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

1 Q. If I have Medicare, why do I need this plan?
A. Medicare, with its maximum limitations, was never designed to cover all hospital expenses. But the amount you pay gets bigger! $17-a-day is up from $15! $34-a-day is up from $30! Where will it all end? These widening charges could cost you thousands of dollars But Elder-Care helps relieve your hospital money worries—until you receive $50,000 in tax-free lifetime total benefits.

2 Q. If I have other hospital insurance, doesn't it cover these Medicare charges?
A. Many other plans specify exclusions, riders, and limitations on Medicare. They don't bridge all the uncovered charges, particularly as benefits are adjusted. But with Elder-Care you know that your hospital charges are covered automatically for $50,000 worth of total lifetime protection. There's no waiting period - you're covered immediately for pre-existing conditions. And note: this Plan pays in addition to any other insurance you may have with our Company or any other company. It's your money to spend as you wish.

3 Q. How do I collect my Benefits once I'm in the hospital?
A. There's a simple form to be completed by you and your doctor—and that's all there is to it. As soon as your request reaches us, it gets immediate attention. Folks all over the country have praised the speed and efficiency of Union Fidelity's claim service.

4 Q. Can you cancel me, or raise my rates if I go in and out of the hospital, or if I collect thousands of dollars?
A. Absolutely not! Your Plan cannot be canceled as long as you keep up your premiums—no matter how often, or how much, you collect—until you receive $50,000 maximum. What's more, the $3 rate cannot be raised, or benefits changed, unless a general adjustment—up or down—applies to all Elder-Care policyholders in your state.

5 Q. How can it cost only $3 a month?
A. Because the initial deductible is not insured - that's still your responsibility. Without this one provision total Elder-Care insurance would be too costly to afford. With it, however, this Plan is exceedingly reasonable. Medicare covers most expenses in the first 60-day hospital benefit period. Then Elder-Care fills in the rest of the hospital benefit costs 100% provides long-range protection until you receive $50,000 in lifetime benefits. In addition our direct-by-mail method keeps policy-issue costs at a minimum. And since no salesman will call, there are no sales commission costs.

6 Q. Can I apply if I'm not in good health?
A. Yes you can. No matter how poor your health, any health condition you have right now is covered. There is no waiting period. And of course, any accident or future health condition is covered too.

NO SALESMAN WILL CALL

7 Q. What other advantages are there to applying for this Plan right now?
A. During this limited period there is no red tape of any kind. Just fill in the simple Application Form here. And you enjoy a 30-day Approval Guarantee! You're protected for only $1 while you examine your Elder-Care Policy. If you're not completely satisfied return the Policy within 30 days and we'll promptly refund your money. In the meantime, you're still protected!

8 Q. How do I apply?
A. Complete the Application Form at the right and mail with only $1 for the first month's protection. Your spouse, if over 65, may also apply on this form. But do not send more money! $1 covers you both during your 30-day Approval. Be sure to sign your name and mail before the postmark deadline.
